Closed Shop Outlawing Is Approved

Amendment Due To Go To House Today With Committee's Okay

By M. L. ST. JOHN.

The anti-closed shop amendment will be reported favorably to the house floor today by constitution committee No. 1.

The committee favored the bill, 19 to 16, yesterday, after hearing arguments by legislators and a farm chieftain for the measure and opposition from three Georgia mayors and a number of labor leaders.

As a constitutional amendment, the proposal will require approval of two-thirds of the house membership of 210.

Appearing before a meeting of house constitution committee No. 1 yesterday—a session attended by 400 persons—Mayors W. B. Hartsfield, of Atlanta; S. R. Albright, of Columbus, and W. D. Page, of Augusta, begged the legislature not to throw Georgia's peaceful labor relationship into a turmoil that would threaten the war effort. The mayors asked defeat of the proposed amendment. They praised Georgia's labor leaders and reported their cities had witnessed no strikes during wartime.

GRAMLING'S WARNING

Charles Gramling, president of the Georgia Federation of Labor, said employment practice is a matter for capital and labor to work out and not one for state interference. He warned industries will not come to a state where labor and capital fight.

The employer as well as the employe would be hurt by the anti-closed shop amendment, according to George Googe, of Atlanta, southern representative of AFL. He said it prevents a business firm from dealing with one conservative union and forces it to deal with a mass of unions and unorganized persons. Georgia's leading business firms don't want this amendment, Googe said.

These sentiments were echoed by Wilmer Lanier, of Augusta, former legislator who served as AFL attorney. The amendment would handcuff employers from hiring whom they pleased, the mayor said. He contended the amendment violates the state and national constitutions by destroying property rights of working contracts.

CALLED "ANTILABOR MOVE"

J. A. Scott, of the railway transportation brotherhoods, labeled the amendment as an anti-labor move originating in Michigan, Ohio and Pennsylvania.

Labor delegates attending the hearing represented organizations in these cities: Columbus, Savannah, Brunswick, Macon, Augusta, Rome, Valdosta, Elberton and Atlanta.

Charles Gillman and Miss Lucy Randolph Mason, of the CIO, spoke in opposition to the proposal. They warned it would cause a migration of skilled workers from Georgia into states which protect the rights of workers to bargain collectively.

Spokesmen for the amendment were Reps. Lovett, of Laurens, and Harrison, of Jenkins, and H. L. Wingate, of Pelham, head of the Georgia Farm Bureau.

"The measure is not antilabor," Lovett said. "It means just what it says: The right of a person to work shall not be abridged be-

AFTER EXPLOSION AND FIRE—Walker Electric Company building, covering half a block on Northside drive, was destroyed last night by a $250,000 fire. Explosions shook houses within a radius of several miles and sent startled Atlantans to their telephones. Only person injured was a fireman who suffered a sprained shoulder when a hose he was carrying burst. The plant was doing war work.

Plant Fire-Blast Toll Is $250,000

Fire, which set off a series of heavy explosions, inflicted at least $250,000 in damage last night to the plant of the Walker Electrical Company, at 1590 Northside drive, N. W., a concern for many months engaged 100 per cent in production of war materials.

The explosions shook buildings and knocked out windows in many parts of the northwest section. It sent thousands to telephones to ask The Constitution the source of all the noise. Sections affected included Brookwood, Loring Heights, Morningside and Peachtree Circle.

Latest police reports indicate that all employes on the plant's night shift escaped without injury. A fireman, J. T. Mayfield, was painfully injured in a shoulder when a hose burst.

BUILDING WIPED OUT

The fire, the police said, originated in the paint and lacquer department of the plant's main building, a corrugated iron structure which in reality contains three buildings and which measures 130 feet along Northside drive and 175 feet in depth. Flames and explosions destroyed this building. Two other buildings of the plant apparently escaped without damage.

The plant employs 300 persons, of which 100 work on the night shift. There were 15 at work in the main building at the time the fire started. All of them escaped unhurt, police believe.

In the paint department there was a large number of drums of lacquer, a highly inflammable substance. Fire reaching these drums caused the series of explosions, said C. P. Owens, general manager of the plant, who estimated the minimum damage at a quarter-million dollars.

The number of explosions was variously estimated at from three to five. One of them, the heaviest of the lot, destroyed every window in the plant's building.

WAR PRODUCTS

According to Owens, the plant manufactures for the armed services the following products: 57 millimeter shell containers, electrical panels and switchboards, rocket fins, telephone head-set blocks and a number of other high-priority articles for both Army and Navy.

When the fire broke out, there stood on the railroad siding three box cars already loaded with 57 millimeter shell containers. Al Vasso, treasurer of the company, rushed through the burning paint room and yelled to firemen just arriving on the scene:

"The armed services must have those shell containers."

SAVE SHIPMENTS

The firemen immediately turned their attention to them and by hard work succeeded in keeping the flames away from the loaded box cars. Meanwhile drums of lacquer and cases of paint were exploding around them.

The fire broke out at 8:20 p. m., according to the police. Several fire engines and 75 firemen, under command of Josh Fain, north side

Appointee's Backers Hope President Will Act On RFC Billions

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—(AP)—Without mentioning his nomination as secretary of commerce, President Roosevelt lauded Henry Wallace in a message tonight, but Wallace backers still looked for a direct statement on the cabinet controversy.

"America, its people and its government, need Henry Wallace now more than ever before," the President said in a message read by Bruce Bliven, editor of New Republic Magazine, at a testimonial dinner for Wallace at New York.

It was Mr. Roosevelt's first public announcement relating to Wallace since sending his nomination to be secretary of commerce to the senate.

"NO FAREWELL"

Saying "the occasion of the dinner, I am sure, is not one of farewell" for Wallace, the President said:

"I count on his aid, his wisdom and his courage in the difficult ways to the magnificent hopes we hold for a world worthy of his faith in the people and of the struggles of free people everywhere, which have so splendidly justified that faith."

Supporters of Wallace's nomination were known to have expected tonight's message from the President to be laudatory in nature. They are confidently awaiting a statement from Mr. Roosevelt bearing directly on the controversy over Wallace's nomination as secretary of commerce.

BACKERS ANXIOUS

Wallace backers hoped Mr. Roosevelt either would transfer the RFC and associated lending agencies away from the commerce department or announce he would approve legislation to do it.

Their idea was that Wallace stood a better chance of being confirmed for secretary of commerce if it were made plain that he would not have charge of the lending agencies.

Wallace, however, said in his prepared speech tonight that he would prefer not to be secretary of commerce "if there were serious danger of a 'too little' or 'too

Patton Spans Our Under Heavy Fire

PARIS, Tuesday, Jan. 30.—(AP)—The U. S. Third Army has smashed into Germany at two new points, crossing the Our river from Belgium and battering into the outposts of the Siegfried Line in a storm of fire from enemy tanks and self-propelled guns.

Unable to bring up assault boats and bridging equipment over the jagged, snow-banked terrain, the Doughboys waded through the icy waters four feet deep and clambered up the steep banks into the Reich yesterday. Part of one German town was in American hands last night.

The crossings were forced at Peterskirche and Oberhausen, seven and 10 miles south of St. Vith and some 13 miles southwest of Prum, the Eifel mountain road and railway center which supplies the Siegfried line.

Ahead of the charging ground forces, pouncing Allied fighter-bombers caught the Germans once more trying to withdraw and knocked out more than half of 2,000 motor vehicles spotted on the roads.

Incomplete reports said pilots claimed destruction of 690 vehicles, damaging of 571, destruction of 18 tanks and armored vehicles and damaging of two more. The convoy was caught 10 miles southeast of St. Vith.

A Berlin broadcast declared American pressure was mounting on this front.

The U. S. First Army to the north also was on the attack, liquidating the Belgian bulge and hammering out a bulge of its own within two miles of the Reich after a three and a half mile advance placed it on or beyond the jumping-off line of the German winter offensive.

Lt. Gen. Patton's Third Army troops, who first stalled the ambitious German drive by cracking hard against the south flank, now were carrying the war back to enemy soil.

Two to three miles east of the river lies the main belt of the Siegfried fortifications, into which the bulk of the German armies retired after collapse of their push in the Ardennes.

These defense works in the Eifel mountains make this an arduous route to the Rhine, but it was possible the decision to charge on into the Reich came after indications that the Germans were weakening western forces to prop the sagging Russian front.

Heavy and medium bombers joined the assault on the enemy's communication lines, and in all more than 3,500 Allied planes caught rail and motor transport behind the battle lines in a tornado of destruction.

The French First Army in southern Alsace fought to within a half mile of the enemy citadel of Colmar and was pressing hard against the German canal defenses of the Rhine valley, threatening to force the Nazis from a 20-mile salient menacing Strasbourg from the south.

A front dispatch said the Ardennes withdrawal, coupled with

Russians at Gate Of Prussia Capital

LONDON, Tuesday, Jan. 30.—(AP)—A powerful Red army has invaded Pomerania in northeastern Germany for the first time on a 30-mile front, sweeping to within 93 miles of Berlin and to within 57 miles of the big Baltic port of Stettin, Premier Stalin announced last night on the eve of Hitler's 12th anniversary as chancellor.

"The fate of Berlin is in the balance," a German radio announcer declared in calling on Germans to rise and save the Fatherland capital in the same manner that Russians saved Moscow from the Nazi legions in December, 1941.

Marshal Zhukov's First White Russian Army smashed 13 miles inside Germany northwest of tottering Poznan in western Poland after leaving siege units behind to reduce that island of resistance. Berlin said Russian troops had fought their way into the heart of encircled Poznan and that its fall was only a matter of hours.

PREWAR FRONTIER

West of Poznan the Russians also reached the prewar German-Polish frontier within 93 miles of Berlin. Moscow indicated these units also had crossed into Germany.

Frankfurt on the Oder river, last big shield before Berlin, was only 57 miles from the advancing Russians, and German troops were falling back across the great northern German plain, presumably to make a stand on the Oder which flows to within 40 miles of the Axis capital.

In crossing into Pomerania, the Russians turned the southern end of a miniature Siegfried line running northward from Schneidemuhl, 50 miles northwest of Poznan, and Berlin said that Schneidemuhl itself was encircled by the Russians as they drove swiftly to cut off all Pomerania extending eastward from Stettin to the Polish corridor.

2 MILES OF KONIGSBERG

In East Prussia the Russians, gradually encircling Konigsberg, drove to within two miles of the city.

While Zhukov's troops were pressing toward Berlin on a front of more than 125 miles, other Soviet troops were pushing northward into the Polish Corridor to secure his upper flank. One of these columns seized Pruszoz, only 68 miles southwest of Danzig, and Komierowo, seven miles to the west.

In the south, Marshal Konev's troops, striking south and southwest of captured Katowice, seized more than 70 populated places in Upper Silesia. Included was Knurow, 10 miles northwest of the key rail junction of Rybnik and 30 miles northeast of Moravska Ostrava, Czechoslovakia's third city and citadel astride the Moravia Gap, ancient invasion pathway.

Konev's troops also took Schonwald, three miles southeast of Gleiwitz in German Silesia; Wohlau, five miles southwest of the German concentration camp town of Oswiecim, now in Russian hands, and Lipnik, two miles east of the rail city of Bielsko and 20 miles northeast of the big mining center of Cieszyn (Teschen).

Hour-Long Battle Costs Five Forts; Halsey Says Enemy's on His Heels

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—(UP) American naval power has terminated Japanese control of the South China sea and the U. S. Pacific fleet can operate there "any time we want to," Adm. William F. Halsey said today as American and enemy sources disclosed that American Superfortresses and Allied carrier bombers were striking again at Japan's homeland and her stolen empire.

Gen. H. H. Arnold announced that Superfortress gunners last Saturday destroyed or damaged 119 Japanese fighters in an hour-long battle over Tokyo, according to completed and corrected reports

Three Japanese destroyers were damaged by rocket-firing Marine Mitchell bombers Saturday in the Bonin and Volcano islands, the Navy announced.

The 51st and 52nd straight day of land-based air attacks on Iwo Jima in the Volcano islands Friday and Saturday by Seventh Army Air Force Liberators also was reported.

A United Press dispatch from Halsey's Third fleet said American naval forces have sunk 2,000,000 tons of merchant and transport vessels plus 90 warships, and destroyed 7,315 planes in the past five months.

"We've got the enemy on his heels and we are going to keep on socking him wherever we find him," Halsey said.

Halsey's Third Fleet sank 563 merchant vessels and damaged 1,011, and destroyed 4,370 planes in five months. The 90 warships sent to the bottom included a battleship, four aircraft carriers, four heavy crusires, three light cruisers, 21 destroyers, 18 destroyer escorts, four submarines and 35 small combat ships. Damaged were 153 other vessels, including eight battleships and eight heavy cruisers.

A large portion of the total fell to Vice Adm. John S. McKain's fast carrier task force, which destroyed 1,161,000 tons of shipping and 2,945 planes.

Gen. Arnold announced that Maj. Gen. Curtis E. Lemay's Marianas-based Superfortress bombers attacked Iwo island in the Volcano group some 750 miles south of Tokyo today (Japanese time), their fourth blow of the war at the island from which Japanese bombers occasionally sally to harrass Saipan.

Tokyo said bombers also attacked Hachijo in the Izu group, about 200 miles south of Tokyo, for the first time, and single Superfortresses dropped incendiaries late Sunday and early today (Japanese time) on Tokyo. The broadcasts admitted one "small fire" but said the raids otherwise caused "practically no damage."

Japanese broadcasts recorded by the Federal Communications Commission said 14 Allied carrier-borne planes had made the second attack within a week on ground installations around Palembang, in oil-rich southeastern Sumatra.

House Group Strikes Out Home Rule; Senate Hits at Municipal Electricity

The principal home rule section of the proposed new state constitution was struck out entirely yesterday by a house committee which also undid much of the other work of the special 23-member drafting commission.

Simultaneously, the senate constitution committee voted, 8 to 2, against a proposed amendment to the revised constitution which would permit any municipality to operate its own electric utilities.

In place of the initiative and referendum formula designed by the commission in an effort to eliminate the host of local bills introduced at every session of the general assembly, the house committee adopted this provision:

"The general assembly shall have authority to provide for uniform systems of county and municipal government, and to provide for optional plans of both, and shall have authority to provide for systems of initiative, referendum and recall in both county and municipal governments."

House Speaker Harris, who offered the substitution section, said it "leaves up to the legislature to work out such system of home rule as it sees fit." He added the general assembly already has that authority.

Gov. Arnall and Senate Pres. Gross were said by Harris to have assisted in working out the substitute and joined in recommending its adoption. The committee approved it without dissent or discussion.

The home-rule section devised by the special commission was a compromise intended to resolve a deadlock among the members, but at the time Harris said he doubted if it would be recognizable when the legislature got through with it.

It would have enabled counties and municipalities to pass local bills, with the people permitted to require a referendum on such bills on petition of one-third of the registered voters. Likewise they could initiate local measures by similar referendums.

The unanimous adoption of the substitute drew from Chairman Culpepper, veteran legislator from Fayette county, the exclamation, "Thank God!"

The committee also struck new provisions designed to make county consolidation easier and, again overriding the commission, provide that state and county school superintendents should continue to be elected by the people.

Also eliminated from the proposed document was a new section that would have allowed county fiscal authorities to shift county officers from a fee to a salary basis, or vice versa, upon the recommendation of two successive grand juries.

Rep. McCurdy, of DeKalb, protested the section was intended to save the general assembly from consideration of a lot of local bills but Rep. Durden, of Dougherty, said it would cause "friction and confusion."

The committee retained authority conferred on county boards of education to increase school tax rates to 15 mills and also kept a new section creating a non-salaried state personnel board with such powers and duties as the general assembly may provide.

Tonight's the Night! 5 Big Parties Will Swell Nation's Polio Fund

By PAUL WARWICK

Strong and, in many cases, beautiful legs will dance tonight in order that some poor kid may have a chance to go through the routine motion of simple walking in the days to come, as thousands of Atlantans foregather throughout the city at five simultaneous dances which will not only celebrate the 63rd birthday of President Roosevelt but will also contribute materially to the humanitarian objections of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

Al Belle Isle, in charge of arrangements for the quintet of celebrations, and Mike Benton, who habitually co-operates with Al by assembling a spicy floor show to tour the balls in sequence, say that all is in readiness for a glorious evening and that people are buying the tickets with alacrity—from city and county policemen, city firemen and from the six booths at Davison's Rich's, Muse's, Loew's theater, Kress' Tenth street store and the Southeastern Procurement Office at 86 Edgewood avenue.

For $1.80, including tax, a couple may enjoy themselves at any or all the dances. And that includes the music of Tommy Tucker's nationally known band at the city auditorium and the strains of Sammy Kaye's orchestra, another cluster of music-makers with a wide fame, at the Shrine mosque. Curly Hicks will play at the Ansley hotel in the Dinkler room, Bill Clark will set the pace at the Biltmore in the Georgian ballroom, and Nu Nu Chastain will wiggle the baton over his charges at the Henry Grady. All dances begin at 9 p. m.

Benton's floor show will do its stuff at all five dances, donating a rousing half-hour of entertainment at each.

Belle Isle announced yesterday that men and women in uniforms of the armed forces may buy tickets at the door of any dance for 50 cents a couple and a large attendance is expected from among Atlanta's quota of people in the armed forces.

The extent to which the anti-polio appeal is taking hold of the public heart is illustrated by the case of Pine Lake, a small community in DeKalb county, where the inhabitants were not content in raising 100 per cent contributions for every man, woman and child in the area, but also retraced their steps to collect at least a dime for every pet—dogs, cats, canaries, parrots—in the vicinity. One man even contributed a dime for a wild mallard duck which has made a near-by lake his (or her) recent refuge.

Brace Beemer, better known to millions of youngsters—and you, too—as The Lone Ranger, came into Atlanta yesterday, spoke enthusiastically about the infantile paralysis campaign over WGST, and announced that he had to leave town more hurriedly than he wished because of a command appearance at the birthday ball at

Cloudy, Warmer Weather Forecast Here Today

Partly cloudy and warmer, with temperatures ranging between 27 and 48 degrees—that is the weather outlook for the Atlanta area today, according to A. J. Knarr, forecaster at the municipal airport.

There is no prospect of rain, Knarr says, and he expects the weather to remain dry and cool for several days.

Yesterday the high temperature was 52 degrees at 4:30 p. m., and the low was 29 at 8:30 a. m.

Stainless Steel Orders For Civilians Stopped

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—(AP)—Steel mills were forbidden today to fill orders for stainless steel intended for use in civilian manufacturing under the "spot" authorization plan. The War Production Board announced that the ban was "temporary" but indicated no date when it might be lifted.

BOY, OH BOY, OH BOY!—Match this thrill if you can! Little John Holcomb, four-year-old patient at the Scottish Rite Hospital for Crippled Children, draws a bead on The Lone Ranger, in person, with The Lone Ranger's own big .45. Brace Beemer (the radio and adventure strip hero's real name) visited the hospital yesterday on a visit to the city, to demonstrate his interest in the current appeal for the National Foundation of Infantile Paralysis. He will attend the President's birthday dance in Washington.

Byrnes and Stettinius Absent From Capital

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—(UP)—Three men high in government councils—War Mobilization Director James F. Byrnes, Secretary of State Edward R. Stettinius Jr., and Presidential Adviser Harry Hopkins—are absent from Washington.

Disclosure that Byrnes is out of the country was permitted today, but security regulations forbade any discussion of the nature of his trip.

Simultaneously, British censorship permitted transmission of London dispatches saying that Hopkins, "serving as President Roosevelt's 'advance man' for the forthcoming Big Three Conference, is on his way to Rome and possibly Moscow after conferring in London and Paris with Prime Minister Churchill and Gen. De Gaulle, it was understood tonight."

The State Department, replying to inquiries why Undersecretary Joseph G. Grew was identified as acting secretary, revealed that Stettinius is out of town. Stettinius told a press conference Jan. 19 that he had accepted an invitation from President Roosevelt "to accompany him on his forthcoming trip."

Last Monday, White House Secretary Stephen T. Early told a news conference that Judge Samuel Rosenman, special counsel to Mr. Roosevelt, was preparing to leave on a special mission to England, France, Belgium and the Netherlands to survey the flow of American goods—chiefly civilian supplies—to liberated areas.

Subsequently, European dispatches said Early himself would go to supreme Allied headquarters in Paris to co-ordinate Allied military information. Early said last week he would accept the Army's invitation to go to Europe.

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, wife of the President, will appear at a dinner honoring Henry A. Wallace at New York tonight and will read a message from President Roosevelt.

MacArthur Seizes Luzon's Second City

GEN. MacARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Luzon, Tuesday, Jan. 30.—(AP)—American armored units sped toward Calumpit, within 25 airline miles of Manila, Sunday after Sixth Army infantrymen swept unopposed into San Fernando on the heels of several hundred Japanese who fled toward historic Bataan.

The armored units shot past San Fernando, 34 miles from Manila, to enter the narrow neck of land between two swamps in a drive nearing Calumpit on the Pampanga river.

The fall of San Fernando was reported in a communique which listed Nipponese casualties on Luzon in excess of 25,000 men as against American casualties of 4,254. At San Fernando, the Americans are 90 miles south of Lingayen gulf, where they landed Jan. 9.

While the push toward Manila gained speed, other Americans to the north, battling in tough ridge country, seized more high ground in the Rosario area within 14 miles of the summer capital of Baguio.

MOVE ON CAMP ONE

The First Corps of Maj. Gen. Innis P. Swift took ridges overlooking Camp One in behind fallen Rosario and also capped a bloody fight 15 miles to the southeast at San Manuel by annihilating Japanese in hand-to-hand fighting. Around San Manuel, 49 destroyed enemy tanks and 789 Nipponese bodies have been counted.

At San Fernando, Russell Brines, Associated Press war correspondent, reported in a field dispatch that cheering Filipinos greeted the liberating Americans in "one of the most colorful celebrations along the triumphant American march southward."

San Fernando, Luzon's second city, on the railroad to Manila and junction point for roads to Manila and Bataan, was left virtually intact. Several hundred Japanese fled hurriedly at day-break Sunday toward Bataan.

DRIVE WEDGE

On the extreme east side of Pangasinan province, the one the Americans invaded at Lingayen gulf, First Corps elements obtained a wedge in highway eight, which skirts footbills of the Sierra Madre range as it leads to Manila.

The doughboys captured the highway town of San Quintin, eight miles east of Santa Maria. It is from highway eight that two roads of retreat for the Japanese lead into the Cagayan valley.

In Tarlac province, below Pangasinan, other troops secured the town of Licab, 12 miles northeast of the provincial capital of Tarlac.

Three Japanese counterattacks were repulsed in the hotly-contested left flank where the Americans took command of high ground near a road junction below Baguio, and pressed eastward from San Miguel, 15 miles to the southeast.

SMASH 49 TANKS

At San Manuel the 25th savagely repulsed elements of the Japanese Second Armored Division in a midnight encounter, and later, at close quarters, completely cleared the sector of the enemy, MacArthur reported.

MacArthur said "the surprise effect of our landing in the enemy's rear and the consequent complete disorganization and unbalance of his forces which have made him fight in detached groups over the comparatively open country of our advance has resulted in almost unparalleled relative losses.

"Our own casualties amount to 1,017 killed, 197 missing and 3,040 wounded."

American warplanes in incessant bombing sweeps pounded enemy coastal defenses at Fort Drum, at the entrance to Manila bay, and again hit the Cavite naval base.

MILLIONAIRE TO RESCUE

Ding-Dong Daddy, Bail Free To Roam Hunting Ground

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 29.—(UP)—Chubby, 58-year-old Francis Van Wie, who admittedly married 12 women in his search for "contentment," roamed his old hunting grounds tonight after being freed on $1,000 bail at his arraignment on triple bigamy charges.

However, the marrying streetcar conductor promised Judge Leo Cunningham he would curb his penchant for fast courtships and whirlwind honeymoons in order to appear Saturday for trial.

Meantime, two of the community's outstanding attorneys, backed by a Van Wie defense group which includes Millionaire Financier Louis Lurie, prepared arguments to back his plea of not guilty of the charges filed by Myrtle, Mary Josephine and Evelyn—wives No. 9, 11 and 12, respectively.

Lurie asserted that he and his associates "by no manner or means are condoning bigamy."

"I guess we got into this thing at first purely from a sense of humor," the financier said.

Attorney Jake Ehrlich, hired by the Lurie group, said he believed they had come to Van Wie's defense "because they probably believe that any man brave enough to marry 12 women should have some help."

which President Roosevelt is being honored in the White House in Washington tonight. A few words from Belle Isle about the availability of good quail shooting in south Georgia came very near making the Lone Ranger change his mind, for he is an avid hunter as well as a horseman.

Beemer, a huge, handsome and personable man—with two sons in the service, incidentally, as well as two other children at his Oxford, Mich., home—did find time, however, to run out to the Scottish Rite Hospital for Crippled Children, with Belle Isle and Rudy Ellis, to give the youngsters a treat. His popularity is understandable to those who saw him in action there and is obviously not confined to his radio adventures nor those which appear in the Sunday comic section of The Constitution.

Little bodies which ordinarily are not strong enough to sit up in bed, raised to shake his hand, and sick little voices became strong enough to ask the whereabouts of Tonto and Silver—and more than one of them slept last night with a memory of having handled, in person, The Lone Ranger's big ivory-handled, gleaming six-shooter, the gun which has brought a Robin Hood brand of justice to more than one outlaw of the airwaves.

Some Ministers Need Kick, Says Leader

By DR. THOMAS M. ELLIOTT

Charging Methodist ministers of the North Georgia Conference with "physical and spiritual laziness," the Rev. Peter Manning, of Elberton First Methodist church and conference director of evangelism, in an impassioned address asserted the ministers "should have a kick in the pants and be told to get going" to the work to which God had called them.

The Manning address on evangelism came as the concluding feature of an all-day missionary institute held at Wesley Memorial church yesterday by ministers and laymen of the Atlanta West district, when special studies were made of the five objectives fostered by the Methodist crusade for Christ.

OTHER SPEAKERS

Other speakers heard during the day were District Superintendent Wallace Rogers, Mrs. Arthur Styron, the Rev. Hoke Sewell, the Rev. J. C. Callaway, Dr. W. F. Quillian, Miss Mary Culler White, the Rev. W. G. Henry Jr. and Walter L. Richard.

In his earnest address on intensive evangelistic effort the Rev. Mr. Manning cited the figures reported officially at the recent session of the North Georgia Conference showing that "320 preachers reported only 4,400 conversions, with no conversions at all by 30." In the Atlanta West district of 36 pastoral charges, "only 516 conversions were reported, with five pastors reporting none." The average number of conversions for the 852 churches in the conference is a small fraction more than five, he said.

"GO TO WORK"

On the basis of these reports the Rev. Mr. Manning urged that recognition of failure be made, and that ministers "really go to work and not be content with such meager ingathering of souls." He insisted that ministers should have a new vision, rightly directed and redirected, with new desires created.

As conference director of evangelism the Rev. Mr. Manning is attending the 10 all-day missionary institutes now in progress in the upper half of the state, giving special emphasis to the evangelism feature of the crusade for Christ.

Chaplain Hero Of Java Defense Visits Lawson

Maj. William C. Taggart, one of the Army's best known chaplains and author of "My Fighting Congregation," toured Lawson General hospital during his three-day visit to Atlanta as the guest of Dr. Louie D. Newton.

Maj. Taggart was chaplain of the often decorated and famed 19th Bombardment Group in the ill-fated defense of Java and for many months in Australia and New Guinea during the dark, early days of the Pacific war.

He is now stationed at the Coral Gables (Fla.) Army hospital. He returned to Miami after his Atlanta visit. During his tour of Lawson he unsuccessfully tried to find old members of the 19th group.

His widely read book was written in 1943 in Pawling, N. Y., after he returned to the United States from the Pacific. Maj. Taggart is a native of Abilene, Texas.

France Is Allotted 5,000 Paper Tons

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—(AP) The United States has allocated approximately 5,000 tons of newsprint to France. Acting Secretary of State Grew said today the action was taken to maintain a means of communication that otherwise would be unable to operate.

Rep. Brown, Republican, Ohio, and Boren, Democrat, Oklahoma, had asked the state department in a letter why the newsprint could not be obtained from the Scandinavian countries and Russia.

Grew told reporters that the possibility of obtaining newsprint for the liberated areas of Europe from sources outside North America had been under constant survey but that the exigencies of war do not now permit a free flow of merchandise from the Scandinavian countries. It is impossible, he asserted, to get the newsprint available there.

Nurses To Meet

Japs Bolster Positions Against China Invasions

CHUNKING, Tuesday, Jas. 30.—(AP)—The Japanese, bolstering their east China coast positions against possible U. S. landings, have scored new gains around Swatow, the Chinese high command said today.

A Tokyo dispatch declared the Japanese, developing the southeastern China coast into a "continental fortress," had occupied the entire Kwangtung province coast nearest the Philippines, and were hastily throwing up fortifications that would foil any invasion.

Deepening their coastal buffer zone, the Japanese pressed to within six miles of Fungshun, 45 miles northwest of Swatow, on Friday, the high command said.

Foster Seeking Writ To Install His Chief Deputy

The Grimes-Smithwick feud over the chief deputy's post in the Fulton county sheriff's office is headed for the courts amid inferences by Carl W. Smithwick, Sheriff A. B. Foster's sponsored candidate, that "politics" is involved in his opposition.

Following refusal of the Fulton county commission yesterday to spread on the board's minutes Smithwick's formal appointment, Foster filed a writ of mandamus to force the commission to accept Smithwick in preference to Ralph Grimes, who formerly held the chief deputy's job but who was granted a civil service leave of absence to act as sheriff after the death of the late Sheriff J. M. Mount.

Sheriff Foster's petition has been set for a hearing in the motions division of Fulton superior court for Feb. 9. At the present time Judge A. L. (Jack) Etheridge is sitting in the motions division, but a shift in duties of judges may take place Feb. 1.

The wrangle over the position has simmered down to:

1. Whether Foster has the right to name his chief deputy as Houston White, Foster's attorney, claims he has under a general state law commonly known as the "crown prince act."

2. Whether Grimes is entitled to revert to his old post as chief deputy which he was assured by civil service authorities before he accepted the acting sheriff's job.

When White as Foster's representative lost the effort to have Smithwick's appointment made the order of the board, he then unsuccessfully attempted to hold up payment of Grimes' salary for January.

Harold Sheats, attorney, and John Westmoreland, counsel for Grimes, held that the commission had no discretion in the matter. Sheats said that since Grimes is recognized as the chief deputy, his monthly pay check, amounting to $375, should go to him Thursday when other county officials are paid.

Commissioner Charlie Brown asserted that if commissioners become personally liable for pay received by Grimes, he for one, would pay his part, and Commissioner I. Gloer Hailey vigorously attacked White's contentions.

Harry Bridges Wins Review

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—(AP)—Harry Bridges, west coast CIO labor leader, today won a supreme court review of the legal fight he has made against deportation to his native Australia.

Bridges asked aid of the high tribunal in seeking to block a deportation order issued by Attorney General Biddle in May, 1942. Biddle at that time said Bridges was a member of the Communist party and asserted the party advocated "violent overthrow" of the United States government.

In granting Bridges a review, the high court denied a request of the Communist Political Association that it be permitted to intervene in the case as a friend of the court.

Jailed on Charge Of Contraband

John J. Sisk, federal penitentiary employe who allegedly sold lunches to a prison inmate "because he got only three meals a day and I felt sorry for him," was arrested Saturday by FBI agents on charges of introducing contraband into the prison.

Sisk was committed to the Fulton county jail under $750 bond.

Items which the prison employe illegally delivered to inmates, according to charges preferred against him, included one letter, aspirin tablets, patent medicines, vaseline and lunches.

Mailing Center Opened For Extra Gas Applicants

A mailing center for the issuance of supplemental gasoline ration coupons has been organized and is being operated by the district Office of Price Administration here.

The OPA has requested all applicants to "apply in the usual manner and well in advance of the expiration date of the gasoline ration coupon book." The mailing center will expedite rather than delay the issuance of coupons, the OPA said. Reguests for supplemental gasoline should be made to the Fulton County War Price and Rationing Board.

Fugitive Poses as Drunk, Pays $10 Bond, Flees Jail

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Jan. 29.—(AP)—Police discovered today that a 34-year-old man arrested last week as a fugitive from the Alabama state penitentiary wormed his way out of the city jail on $10 bond Saturday night by representing to an unsuspecting jailer that he was held on a charge of drunkenness.

Chief of Detectives O. N. Martin said the ruse was not discovered until a check was made of the Monday morning police lineup.

O'Connor was convicted by court-martial of killing a soldier guard. The Long Island soldier was in the post stockade, engaged in fatigue duty. The Army charged O'Connor wrested the guard's shotgun from him, shot the soldier and made good his escape.

Servicemen's Wives Organize To Smooth Way for Sisters

The feminine touch may hold the answer to problems which have often proved too much for Uncle Sam and his workers.

That is the premise a group of war wives are working on in their new organization, Wives and Widows of Overseas Servicemen. They hope to help other wives to find employment, friends and the all-important—a place to live.

Mrs. Jo Carter, elected temporary president at the first meeting of the group Sunday, explained that the WWOS wished to help other wives, to keep up morale of the men overseas, and to make newcomers feel at home and find them a home and job, if they wish it.

"We thought that temporary workers in the club could notify us if they are giving up a job. In that way we could probably find another war wife to fill it," she said.

Speakers at the meeting were Sgt. John Williams, of the Fort McPherson Separation Center; Chaplain Frederick W. Hunt, of Hunt, of Fort McPherson; Mrs. Willard Patterson, and John Delamater, of the Veterans' Administration. Each explained, in terms of his work, the opportunities open to the members.

The 20 Atlantans present heard how they can keep up morale of the men abroad and when they are discharged from service, how best to help the war effort at home, and how to help wives of casualties.

Temporary officers elected besides Mrs. Carter were Mrs. Aimee Reed, vice president; Mrs. Coye Walker, secretary-treasurer; Mrs. Verna Lee Drew, Mrs. Sarah Tate, Mrs. Mary Reed and Mrs. Eloise Phillips, all executive members. The program and planning committee is composed of Mrs. Ted Thress, Mrs. Mary Walton and Mrs. Thelma Duckworth.

Mrs. Carter announced that all wives of servicemen overseas are invited to attend the group's next meeting at the Piedmont hotel, Parlor H, from 6 to 8 p. m., Feb. 16.

LEUKEMIA VICTIM SINKING

Ramspeck, Navy Try To Get Hubby Home

By WELLINGTON WRIGHT

With her condition "definitely worse," Mrs. Martha Jean Mentzer, critically ill here in the Jesse Parker Williams hospital of a vicious type of leukemia, hopefully awaited last night a favorable action on the request to the Navy Department to send her husband, Maxwell R. Mentzer, to see her. Mentzer, a yeoman, third class, is on service with the Navy in the Pacific and when last heard from was in New Guinea.

Reports from Washington indicate that the Navy Department is favorably disposed toward the application for an emergency leave for Mentzer. At the request of Congressman Robert Ramspeck, member of the house from this district, officials have initiated an investigation which may result in bringing Mentzer home on temporary leave.

As a first step in this official inquiry the Navy Department officials have asked for a report on the case from the Atlanta chapter of the American Red Cross. If this report verifies the information already in the hands of the Navy Department, officials indicate that Mrs. Mentzer's family might expect favorable action.

Rep. Ramspeck acted upon receipt of a letter from Dr. J. C. Blalock, attending physician to Mrs. Mentzer. In that letter, Dr. Blalock said that Mrs. Mentzer is suffering from the myelogeous type of leukemia, the most virulent form of that disease. This type of leukemia is rare, physicians say, and usually fatal. Dr. Blalock informed Ramspeck that he gave Mrs. Mentzer at the most two or three weeks to live.

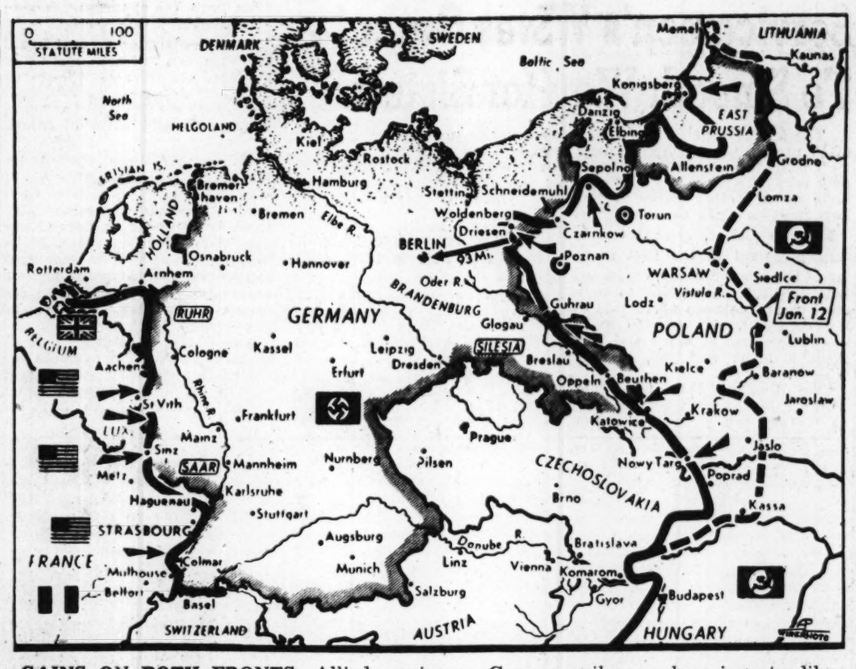

On account of these factors, coupled with Mrs. Mentzer's mental reactions, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Sampson, of 1268 Piedmont avenue, N. E., asked Dr. Blalock to do what he could to get Mentzer here on temporary leave. The Mentzers have two children, Barbara Jean, 8, and Lynn, 16 months old.

In Washington, Navy Department officials told Ramspeck that they would be glad to do whatever is possible to bring Mentzer back home—provided the Red Cross report verifies the information transmitted by Dr. Blalock through the Georgia congressman.

These officials told The Constitution yesterday that they could not say immediately whether Mentzer is at present at sea or is at some land outpost in the Pacific. If circumstances warrant his immediate return, the Navy Department indicated, Mentzer could come back on emergency leave and officials said that, if he is not now at sea, it might be possible to bring him home by plane on short notice. If he should be at sea, they said, it might be necessary to wait until his ship reaches a port.

In Washington, Ramspeck said that he would take further action upon receipt of the report from the Red Cross.

In Atlanta, the family of Mrs. Mentzer said their last report from Mentzer was from a land base in New Guinea. At that time he was on service in one of the land outposts of the Pacific fleet.

GAINS ON BOTH FRONTS—Allied armies on German soil are advancing steadily toward Berlin from both the east and the west. In the west the Americans drove into the Reich south of St. Vith. In the east the Russian army burst into Germany in a new area, capturing Driesen, only 93 miles from the German capital. In East Prussia the Soviets were on the fringes of Konigsberg.

U. S. Plane Smash Aids Soviet Push

LONDON, Jan. 29.—(AP)—Well over 2,000 Allied heavy bombers and fighters—the bulk of them from the U. S. Eighth Air Force—dealt devastating blows to seven German rail centers and a tank factory today after a night-long aerial bombardment of refugee-crowded Berlin.

Almost 1,200 American Flying Fortresses and Liberators, escorted by 700 Mustangs and Thunderbolts, bombed two railyards at Coblenz, others at Siegen, Hamm, Munster and Kassel, and a tank factory at Kassel.

During the afternoon RAF heavy bombers hit Krefeld on the western edge of the Ruhr.

The Luftwaffe was so scarce American fighter pilots had to chase as far north as Bremen before stirring up any opposition. They shot down four Messerschmitts, splintered two on the ground and shot up troop trains, freight trains and stray locomotives all over western Germany.

Even German antiaircraft batteries were off their stride. Ground fire was described as "moderate to meager"—mostly meager.

Five bombers and four fighters of the Eighth Air Force were missing from today's raids, a U. S. communique said, adding that escorting fighters damaged or destroyed 21 locomotives and 119 railway cars during strafing runs over tracks, switch houses, power stations and factory buildings.

Skies were murky but were to the liking of the bomber crews. The sprawling railyards were easy to locate by instruments and the German fighters—the few which have not been hustled off to the eastern front—did not poke their noses through the clouds.

Working on the theory that the Nazis were desperately draining all surplus men and material from the west to throw in the critical battle in the east, Allied air commanders struck one of the heaviest blows in months at the German rail system in the west.

Every target was on the main east-west line. It is possible the attack will have telling effect on the fighting east of Berlin—even if traffic is disrupted for no longer than 48 hours.

The blow came after repeated night-time blockbuster attacks on the Nazi capital, its shelter facilities taxed by some 2,000,000 war refugees, and a 3,000-ton bomb attack on Stuttgart's railway by the RAF.

A U. S. strategic air force communique said photos revealed that the 3-year-old Rodenkirchen highway suspension bridge across the Rhine at Cologne—1,834 feet long and 90 feet wide—was knocked down by Eighth Air Force bombers. It was one of five Rhine bridges at Cologne and the third to be destroyed by the Eighth.

RUSSIANS

Poland, captured the strategic communications center of Nowy Targ, 40 miles south of Krakow, and 100 other localities.

Zhukov's northern wing which crossed into Germany, captured Driesen, 93 miles northeast of Berlin, and Woldenberg, 57 miles southeast of Stettin. The former is along the Danzig railway and Woldenberg to the northwest is astride the Berlin-Danzig highway.

At Driesen the Russians were only 24 miles northeast of Landsberg, 62 miles from Frankfurt, and 53 miles from the Oder river defense line.

More than 150 German localities were swept up in Pomerania as Zhukov's central columns pushed through western Poland and overran 400 localities, including Miedzychod, 16 miles south of Driesen and 93 miles from Berlin. At this point the Russians had no natural waterway barring their way into Germany and were striking between the Obra and Warthe (Warta) rivers.

Lwowek, 15 miles southeast of Miedzychod, was seized, as was Nowy Tomysl, nine miles south of Lwowek and Zbaszyn, on the German frontier, 98 miles southeast of Berlin. Zbaszyn (Bentschen) is on the main Warsaw-Berlin railway.

Twelve miles southeast of Zbaszyn the Russians also occupied Wolsztyn, 21 miles from the middle reaches of the Oder river.

The Russians gained up to 24 miles during the day on this 55-mile front west of Poznan, and all the localities captured were either on the frontier or from three to 13 miles away.

CALL TO REVOLT

In the lower German Silesia, 50 miles south of Wolsztyn, the Russians were reported by Berlin to have crossed the Oder river on both sides of Steinau and penetrated several miles to the west. Steinau, 32 miles northwest of besieged Breslau, Silesian capital of 650,000, is 137 miles southeast of Berlin and about 125 miles northwest of Prague, Czechoslovak capiital.

The Moscow radio last night urged all the citizens of Breslau to revolt, telling them: "The Red Army stands poised before Breslau. The burgomaster who wished to save the city was ruthlessly executed. Turn your weapons against your gauleiter (Nazi district leader). His place is on the gallows. The aim of the Red army is not to destroy the German people but only to extirpate every vestige of Nazism."

In German East Prussia the Russians captured Siedlung, two miles northwest of Konigsberg; Altenberg, two miles south of the big capital, and Mahnsfeld, seven miles on the southwest, as they fought to encircle the city.

Northwest of Allenstein, 62 miles south of Konigsberg, the Russian were locked in a fierce struggle with large forces of enemy troops—part of the estimated 250,000 trapped in East Prussia—who were trying to break out to the west and reach Danzig territory.

NAZIS ADMIT LOSS

Pushing 24 miles west from Czarnkow, other Russian units crossed the frontier and captured Lukatz-Kreuz, on the trunk railway. Fanning out from there, one column sped eight miles to the southwest and took Driesen, the closest point to Berlin yet announced by the Russians, while another sped 12 miles to the northwest and occupied Woldenberg.

Shortly before Stalin's announcement the German news agency DNB said Lukatz-Kreuz had been evacuated and "their lines there taken back to economize forces."

German broadcasts reflected acute alarm over the threat to Berlin, but boasted that the German high command still had "trump cards" to play against Zhukov's advancing troops.

"There is no coherent defense line," one broadcast said. "We are fighting with sheer desperation. We are fighting for every village, hamlet, farmstead, for every stump of trees.

"Where is the focal point of brtle? One cannot say because the floods have inundated everything and are surging on without respite."

Another broadcast promised that German reinforcements were hurrying from the western front and also from the Reich's interior, and sought to give the impression that the Nazi high command deliberately was sucking the invaders inland while preparing major counterthrusts.

Paris radio, however, broadcast a dispatch from the German frontier saying that many Nazi party leaders were moving from Berlin to Munich to set up "resistance headquarters" there.

The German armed forces radio disclosed that the 16-year-olds and 60-year-olds of the home army still were being thrown into the bitter struggle in increasing numbers, as well as urban and rural police forces. Reports relayed from Switzerland told of increasing defections in the home army ranks—thrown against Russian veterans and armored forces with only brief training and inadequate weapons.

MALMOE, Sweden—(By Telephone to Stockholm), Jan. 29—(UP)—The German light cruiser Nurnberg and other units of the German Baltic fleet have arrived at Copenhagen from Konigsberg, Danzig, Gdynia and other ports menaced by the Russian drive. Danish authorities have ordered evacuation of residential quarters near the Copenhagen inner harbor "in view of the acute danger of Allied air attacks" on the refugee vessels.

reversals on the eastern front, was sapping German morale and that desertions were increasing. It was estimated the enemy had withdrawn at least a fourth of its air strength and shifted it to meet the Soviets.

A broadcast by the German DNB agency said that Canadian troops had penetrated German lines east of Geertruidenberg in Holland but were driven back in fierce fighting.

It added that the Canadians were continuing their attack 14 miles northwest of Tilburg and just south of the Maas river. Col. Ludwig Sertorius, German military commentator, later broadcast that fighting on the Canadian front had flared east of Nijmegen but that it was too early to say whether it indicated a large-scale attack.

The U. S. Third Army's private invasion of the Reich along the Moselle river valley made its deepest penetration to date—a point five and a half miles northeast of the Luxembourg-German-French corner and 20 miles southwest of the Siegfried fortress of Trier.

The remainder of the snow-bound front was quiet except for enemy shelling. The Germans were lobbing 15-inch shells into the Saverne gap on the U. S. Seventh Army front. They were plastering the British with artillery on the Roer front at St. Odilienburg, two and a half miles south of Roermond.

Despite the waist-deep snowdrifts, Lt. Gen. Hodges' First Army broadened its three-mile assault line to at least six miles.

late' man being appointed" to head the lending agency.

"I feel that from the standpoint of 60,000,000 workers, the profits of busineess, the income of farmers, the welfare of the country as a whole, and the protection of the United States treasury, I could do a better job if the two were combined than if they were separated," he said.

"The people who are fighting against me know that they are not fighting a starry-eyed liberal or mystic," he said. "If they really thought that, they wouldn't be worried.

"They are fighting against sound principles upon which America can survive as a great and prosperous nation. They know that with me in commerce there would be a continuous campaign for maximum production, maximum sales, maximum exports and imports. They know I would rally business support behind the department of commerce to make it the great service institution it ought to be."

Wallace Asks To Keep RFC Loan Power

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—(UP)—Henry A. Wallace said tonight that he could do a better job as secretary of commerce if the post included the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and that if the loan agency were stripped from the post and given to a "too-little and too-late man, he would prefer not to accept the secretaryship.

Previously, the former vice president told a senate committee that he would accept the secretaryship with or without the lending powers.

His remarks tonight were made in a speech before a Union for Democratic Action dinner in his honor.

DENIES HE'S MYSTIC

He asserted that those fighting against the confirmation of his nomination to the commerce post knew "they are not fighting a starry-eyed liberal or mystic," but "they know that with me in commerce there would be a continuous campaign for maximum production, maximum sales, maximum exports and imports."

"The nation must not be subjected to an economic Munich or Dunkerque," Wallace said. "To have 10,000,000 men unemployed is as dangerous to the nation as it was for the British to have 250,000 men on the beaches at Dunkerque."

He said that "those who voted against me in the (senate commerce) committee either believe in policies which will make 60,000,000 jobs impossible, or wish to destroy all possibility of a progressive Democratic party as a national force."

"Those who are fighting me . . . are fighting against the survival of capitalism and free enterprise," he said.

He described the RFC as "certain to be a headache for anyone."

CALLS RFC A BURDEN

"While the senate would relieve me of a great burden by giving me commerce without RFC," he said, "I feel that from the standpoint of the 60,000,000 workers, the profits of business, the income of farmers, the welfare of the country as a whole, and the protection of the United States treasury, I could do a better job if the two were combined than if the two were separated.

"Undoubtedly," he said, "many good men could be found to head the loan agency, but I wish to make it clear to you that if there were serious danger of a 'too-little' and 'too-late' man being appointed, I would prefer not to be secretary of commerce."

Wallace said tha "economic illiteracy" caused the "smash of 1921, the crash of 1929," and "economic illiteracy is not dead."

Speaking with him was Henry J. Kaiser, west coast shipbuilder, who said "Wallace exemplifies the liberal tradition," and urged that the country unite "in the spirit of liberalism" to insure "the maximum use of all the resources of men, materials and technology so vital to the prosperity and security of a world at peace."

Walter P. Reuther, vice president of the United Automobile Workers, CIO, said Wallace "understands that our political bill of rights must be paralleled with an economic bill of rights."

James G. Patton, president of the National Farmers Union, urged farmers to back Wallace.

Wallace praised the labor units in the audience and said "you were the balance of power and without you the Democratic party would have been defeated" in the last election.

It was his first speech since he announced that he would "take the fight to the people." The audience included Sidney Hillman who, on Saturday, wired CIO and CIO PAC leaders to rally behind Wallace and pressure senators to support Wallace.

Truman Pledges Support to Wallace

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 29.—(UP)—Vice President Truman said tonight that if he were in the senate he would vote for the confirmation of Wallace as secretary of commerce. Truman said he would "support Wallace for the job as the department now stands."

BOMBER CREW CUT FREES 2,000 MEN

LONDON, Jan. 29.—(AP)—The steadily rising power of American fighters coupled with declining German Air Force reaction to daylight aerial attacks, has enabled the U. S. Eighth Air Force to reduce the crews of heavy bombers from 10 to nine men.

The duties of the crew now have been rearranged so that one waist gunner position is handled by the navigator.

The move has a two-fold advantage—lightening the load of each bomber and releasing one man from each of some 2,000 bomber crews for other duties.

Santa Fe is proud to serve Phoenix and the Salt River Valley "where everything grows"

In this land of year-round sunshine, farmers and ranchers of the Phoenix area are proudly stacking up their lettuce, cauliflower, carrots, potatoes, cabbage, asparagus, broccoli, celery, spinach and citrus fruits against comparable products of any other valley in the country.

Truly, here is "Vitamin Valley" from which Santa Fe freight cars loaded with crisp, cool health go to the nation's markets.

Santa Fe is wholeheartedly cooperating with Salt River shippers with better, more convenient service.

We have helped work out more efficient methods of packing and icing.

We have built new sidings alongside the lines of loading sheds.

We are doing our best to allocate the right type of cars at the right time when the rushes come.

And we are working hand-in-glove with shippers on that fine Salt River Valley innovation—the "mixed car" of vegetables.

In days of peace to come, in days of "new water" to make a fruitful valley even more fruitful, Santa Fe pledges its continued cooperation, in moving out the vegetables.

Repeal of Poll Tax Wins House Approval

By ELMO GREENE.

Poll tax measures are demanding marked attention of Georgia solons in both houses of the legislature.

The senate's State of the Republic Committee meeting today, following senate adjournment, probably will reverse its action of last week approving an amendment offered by Sen. Spence Grayson, of Savannah, to permit the Governor to suspend any tax except the poll tax.

In the house yesterday, the Ways and Means Committee passed the senate-approved poll tax repeal legislation, and House Speaker Roy V. Harris planned to call the measure up in the house tomorrow as a special order of business.

REGISTRATION PROPOSAL

The bill was amended from the form in which it passed the senate so as to retain permanent registration of voters. It provides that if a person fails to vote for two years, notice shall be sent him that his name will be stricken from the registration lists unless he returns the notice.

The senate-approved bill would require biennial registration.

The senate amendment was to a bill abolishing the Governor's authority to waive any tax. That bill, authored by Sen. Marvin Moate, of Sparta, will be considered by the committee today. It is expected to be voted out with the recommendation that it "do not pass."

Sen. William B. Freeman, of Forsyth, is chairman of the committee.

JUDICIAL COUNCIL

In the senate yesterday, a bill creating a judicial council for the senate was passed, 33 to 7, and sent to the house. The 15-member council, to recommend rules of court practice and procedure for adoption by the supreme court, would be composed of two supreme court members, a judge of the court of appeals, the chairmen of the senate and house judiciary committees, two superior court judges, five lawyers and three laymen.

A companion bill, giving the supreme court authority to regulate the bar, subject to ratification by the legislature, was passed, 34 to 0, and sent to the house.

Sen. Sam Welsch, of Marietta, introduced a bill which would require all school buses to be painted red, white and blue for "safety and patriotic" purposes.

A resolution submitted by Sen. Guy Stone, of Glenwood, urged President Roosevelt to give consideration to southerners in making future cabinet appointments.

The senate defeated a bill to permit no special election or primary to be held on a legal holiday.

Other additions include: Mrs. Margaret Mitchell Marsh, called "Atlanta's woman of every year;" Mrs. J. C. Blalock, president, Georgia League of Women Voters, and Mrs. Arthur Harris, USO leader.

Re-elected to the board are: Mrs. Albert Thornton, Mrs. Floyd McRae, Mrs. Francis Abreu, Mrs. Walter Dupre and Mrs. J. C. Malone. Completing the roster of board members is the executive committee headed by Mrs. Robert F. Adamson and including: Mrs. Claude McGinnis Jr., Mrs. Edwin McCarty, Mrs. Donald Hastings and Mrs. Harold Cooledge.

Captain Dooly Eulogized by Chief Styron

Fire Capt. Marshall Andrew Dooly, 50, who died Sunday, last night was praised as "one of Atlanta's greatest and most conscientious fire fighters" by the Atlanta board of firemasters.

Pausing in their deliberations, the board heard Fire Chief Styron laud Capt. Dooly and recount his services for 28 years as a member and officer of the department.

Styron said Dooly was almost single-handedly responsible for saving the Gordon Street Baptist church from destruction by fire and that he was selfless in his devotion to duty. Styron recounted an incident when Dooly was flung 30 feet from a ladder to the ground as he fought flames on a tall building.

Dooly was a native Atlantan, a member of Capital City Lodge, F. & A. M., and a member of fireman's local.

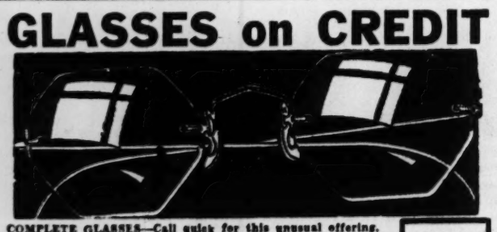

Funeral service will be announced by Awtry & Lowndes.

Alto Moves Deferred by House Group

Efforts to take the Alto state tuberculosis sanitorium from under supervision of the state health department and to order the sanitorium to accept immediately all Georgia tuberculosis victims have been tabled by a house committee.

The Alto committee yesterday held up action on two resolutions, until it had an opportunity to investigate conditions at the sanitorium. The group probably will visit Alto within the next few days.

Rep. John Greer, of Lanier, author of the resolution, agreed to the suspension of action after State Health Commissioner T. F. Abercrombie asked an opportunity to straighten out the sanatorium. Abercrombie said Speaker Harris and Gov. Arnall had agreed to give the health department such an opportunity.

GOVERNOR'S ORDERS

The Governor, in a letter read to the house, instructed Abercrombie to "do whatever is necessary" to fill the 125 vacant beds at Alto. He said more personnel could be obtained with better salaries.

Expressing confidence in the health department, Arnall declined Abercrombie's invitation to have a three-way investigation made into the sanatorium's operations. There is no criticism of the medical nor administrative work at Alto, the Governor said. Criticism is on the fact that the sanatorium is not operating at its full capacity.

HEALTH BOARD VIEW

The state board of health, in a meeting yesterday, took notice of the resolution to place Alto under the welfare department's supervision.

"While we regard the personnel of that department to be of the highest type of citizens and businessmen, we doubt the wisdom of placing the administration of an institution which has to do with the treatment of tuberculosis entirely with a group whose training and knowledge of the needs of such an institution are not comparable to that of the composite group composing the state health board," the board statement said. "We feel that the public would have the same regrets, if this should be done, as occurred within the last few years with regard to their education institutions being placed in the hands of men not acquainted with educational needs."

LAUDS ABERCROMBIE

The health board lauded Dr. Abercrombie's ability and long service as health director. The board said Alto at full capacity could care for only 10 per cent of Georgia's tuberculosis victims, and it said it has approved plans for building sufficient hospitals after the war to care for all sufferers.

In other legislative action yesterday, the house passed two bar association bills. One permits superior court judges to render declaratory judgments. The other requires acts of the legislature to be filed with superior court clerks within 30 days after passage.

Pay raises for justices of peace and constables have been proposed by Reps. Hinson and Williams, of Ware, and Brock, of Carroll. They asked an increase of fees ranging from 30 to 50 per cent to offset losses suffered by justice courts for the decline of litigation during the past decade.

DeKalb and Cobb Bills Await Arnall's Okay

Local measures to authorize the election of Decatur tax assessors in June instead of January, as provided under the present law, and to increase the compensation allowed Cobb county deputy sheriffs when serving at polling places from $2 to $5 a day have been transmitted to Gov. Arnall after winning unanimous approval in both houses of the assembly.

The compensation mentioned in the Cobb county bill, which was originated in the senate by Sen. Sam Welsch, of Marietta, was fixed by an amendment offered in the house by Rep. Brumby, of Cobb. As passed by the upper house, the bill would have provided a $3 per diem fee for the deputies.

cause of membership or nonmembership in a labor union."

Lovett invited unions to take the initiative in proposing constructive legislation that would eliminate the "labor rackets." Admitting that capital erred in the old sweatshop practices, Lovett urged labor not to go too far the other way.

Harrison declared there is nothing wrong with the proposal. He warned the Georgia union members to beware of their leaders. "You have good ones, but you also have some bad ones," he commented. The union label which used to mean good craftsmanship is being destroyed by the admission of anyone to the union who pays tribute to labor leaders, he said.

Wingate declared that the farmers have done a good job, and "there's not a closed shop among them." He said it is absurd to call the amendment antilabor, as it protects the right of everyone to work.

Two Negro men, seated among white people in the house gallery, were escorted out by a doorkeeper.

Constitution and Stockmen Given Legislative Praise

Combined efforts of The Constitution and the stock breeders of Georgia to promote the present utility and the future growth of the livestock industry in Georgia have won the official commendation of both houses of the Georgia legislature.

A resolution, introduced in the house of representatives by Rep. A. M. Campbell, of Newton county, passed by that body and concurred in by the senate, follows:

"Whereas, it has come to the attention of the members of this body that livestock and livestock products produced in our state have reached a total value greater than that of any other single crop, and

PRORESSIVE EFFORTS

"Whereas, this has not only become possible because of our long-growing season's equable climate, but also because of the consistent progressive efforts of farmers, educators, businessmen, professional men, scientists, state and federal officeholders and employes and a sound legislative program, and

"Whereas, the various livestock associations, including producers of beef cattle, and dairy cattle, swine and sheep, together with The Atlanta Constitution, radio station WAGA and the Chamber of Commerce of Atlanta, are sponsoring a movement to publicize the great progress that Georgia has made in the production and processing of livestock and livestock products within the past third of a century, and

"Whereas, the War Food Administration and the state department of agriculture and various agencies of the University System of Georgia and other groups and associations actively identified with livestock production in Georgia are co-operating in the above-mentioned program, and

OF STATEWIDE INTEREST

"Whereas, all our citizens are, or should be, vitally interested in the program of livestock production in Georgia, as another means of farm prosperity; therefore,

"Be it resolved, that the house of representatives congratulate the people of Georgia on the progress that has been made to date in the production of livestock and livestock progress in our beloved state; that we publicly commend the farmers and agencies associated with them for bringing about this fundamental change and that we also thank The Atlanta Constitution, station WAGA, Chamber of Commerce of Atlanta; the livestock associations representing the producers of dairy and beef cattle, sheep and swine, for sponsoring this splendid movement, designed to compliment these concerned in bringing about this great improvement and to bring additional honor and prestige to the state of Georgia."

Statewide Probation Bill Offered

Measure Favors Full-Time Office in All Judicial Circuits

Establishment of a full-time probation office in every judicial circuit in Georgia is proposed in a bill now before a house committee for consideration.

The measure also would broaden the probation work to include felony cases (up to a maximum sentence of five years) instead of merely misdemeanor sentences (which run only 18 months).

Supported by the Georgia Bar Association, the probation bill was introduced yesterday by Rep. Gowan, of Glynn.

Only a few counties with large cities, such as Atlanta, Macon and Savannah, have full-time probation officers now, Gowan observed. These are paid entirely by the counties. Most counties leave probation supervision to deputy sheriffs or voluntary workers.

Under the bar association's bill, the state would pay each probation officer $1,800 a year, and the counties in the judicial circuit would supplement these salaries.

Realizing that a trained probation officer could not be obtained for $1,800, Gowan said some counties might supplement the salaries in order to pay their officers as high as $4,000 or $5,000. The salary supplement would be up to the counties, who could judge the amount of work an officer had to do, and his ability for doing it. Some circuits might see fit to employ assistant probation officers to help carry the load, Gowan said.

"The bill is designed to be broad enough to permit any circuit in the state to establish an efficient probation system," the representative continued. "Present probation systems which are now in effect in some counties will not be disturbed nor curtailed by this act."

In permitting a judge to place felony prisoners as well as misdemeanor persons on probation, Gowan said that 18 months is too short a period to assure the rehabilitation for proper and safe conduct of a convicted defendant.

The bar association bill provides only for an adult probation system, and does not interfere with juvenile probation systems already in effect in some counties, Gowan stated.

Headache Is A Symptom

By H. C. NAYLOR, Pres. Lane Drug Stores, Inc.

No one ever has "just a headache." Somewhere in his or her system, hidden to all but a qualified physician, there is a cause, a reason, for the ache. And it's a physical disability that only a doctor can correctly diagnose, prescribe the remedy and thus save the sufferer from more serious complications.

Perhaps no human ailment is so frequently neglected as are headaches, nor so unsuccessfully self-treated. Even occasional headaches should serve as a warning that something is wrong with the functioning of the organic structure, and should result in a visit to the doctor's office for advice.

Then the choice of a druggist to fill the prescription should be a careful one. (c)

Have You Helped the March of Dimes?

This is President Roosevelt's birthday.

All over the nation tonight will be held entertainments sponsored for the cause which the chief executive holds so dear—the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, that great organization which devotes itself to curtailing the spread of the dread disease polio.

Here in Atlanta five dances will be held, with all proceeds going to the foundation. Similar entertainments are planned throughout the state. Georgia, the President's other home, is co-operating fully in the annual campaign to raise funds with which to carry on the magnificent work of combatting infantile paralysis.

"National attention is focused on Georgia's achievement in this direction," State Chairman William Jenkins declared yesterday. "The people of the state have been inspired in the past to make outstanding per capita contributions to the annual campaigns, because this is the home of the Warm Springs Foundation and because it is President Roosevelt's adopted home. Indications now are that we will better our past records."

As many citizens as possible should participate in the President's birthday balls which will be held this evening. But others who find it impossible to attend should not miss the opportunity to further the fight against polio.

Contributions still may be mailed to the President, White House, Washington. Your dimes and dollars will help to provide treatment when the disease occurs and research so that some day it may be stamped out entirely. If you haven't given, do so today.

Republicans Plan a Constructive Tax Program

Under its new leadership, the national Republican party shows real signs of becoming something more than a party of mere opposition.

There will be nonpartisan approval of the GOP's latest constructive move—the setting up of a special 23-man committee to make an exhaustive study of the entire tax structure with the over-all objective of converting it from "a punitive to an incentive basis."

The committee—to be broken down into three-man subcommittees, each of which will make comprehensive analysis of a specific phase of the tax structure—will strive to formulate proposals to simplify returns, stimulate business and permit maximum postwar employment.

"Our taxing system still represents a patchwork which has been built up over the years," explains House GOP Leader Joe Martin. "The strains and stresses of postwar conditions will demand a system which businessmen and individuals can at least understand. We must remember that thousands upon thousands of veterans will want to embark in business in the postwar years, and the present system would offer such an obstacle as to prevent their going into business for themselves. Unemployment will be the greatest menace of the postwar era. The first step to more jobs is an incentive and not a punitive tax system. Small business and big business must be encouraged and aided in creating jobs at good American wages."

The administration, of course, is also at work on its own postwar tax program. But the Republican approach may well result in worth-while contribution to public thought on the matter. The GOP, apparently tired of being called the party of negation, is setting out to instigate some progressive legislation of its own. Its efforts are due general public commendation. Whatever the final results, it cannot be other than time well spent.

To Help Our Friends, First

There have been, for some months past, reports of much suffering and hunger among the Italian people in those areas in Allied hands. These reports have been seized upon, in some quarters, as basis for bitter criticism of the Allied governments. It has been said we are unable to feed "liberated" populations and it has been whispered that these unfortunates were actually far better off when the Germans were in control.

What is overlooked, perhaps conveniently, by these critics is that, until we invaded their soil, Italy was an enemy country. We did not "liberate" Italy from the Germans. We forced her, as a full partner in the enemy axis, to surrender. There is no reason why we should feel particularly generous toward the Italian people who, despite all their apologists, permitted their country to fight ours and thereby to kill many hundreds of American boys.

Nor can Britain be expected to be friendly to the Italian people, remembering the Italian armies that opposed them in Africa, or the Italian planes that joyfully jumped at opportunity to join with the Nazi Luftwaffe in the blitz on London.

It is now explained, however, that France, not Italy, will be the nation in which the Allies will attempt to demonstrate how quickly and how effectively they can rehabilitate a land rescued from the Nazis. This is as it should be. France is our friend and our ally. Once she stands safely on her own economic feet again, she will be a valuable, fighting ally. We propose to help train and arm many divisions of French troops. We propose, too, to do our utmost to see that the French people are fed, sheltered and given the opportunity to regain that individual freedom and that economic security which for so long has been the boast of the average French citizen.

It was but proper and wise that we refrain, as far as possible, from giving to conquered foes, the Italians, supplies we now need for the benefit of liberated friends, the French.

Roosevelt Promotion

Editor Constitution: Please let me sight one of the many injustices in promotions, since the rapid promotion of Elliott Roosevelt is now brought up for confirmation as brigadier general.'

In 1940 Elliott Roosevelt came into the service from civil life and was given the rank of captain.

The four Roosevelt sons are average Americans who have been pushed to the right places at the right time by the right departments because their father was president. Therefore the War Department looked after the two older ones and the Navy Department hasn't done badly by the younger ones. Not one of them has done any honest-to-God fighting and all will come out of it with all the honors and very few scratches. Certainly the photographic reconnaissance wing of the Air Corps is not a fighting unit, and Elliott's superior and junior officers wouldn't dare make an adverse criticism of the president's son—a ranking officer. There are several million young men in the service who draw circles around any one of the Roosevelt sons in the deeds they have done, and the services they have rendered, but they were the boys no one catered to. There are thousands of older men, with long service records, who will never reach any higher grade than a low-ranking lieutenant colonelcy. Any officer who puts his personal property—dogs—before his fellow men in the service, to my mind, hasn't the requisites of an officer.

Were I the president I couldn't confirm this promotion when there are thousands of youngsters 18 and 19 who have only gotten 17 weeks basic and a cross that reads for all time PRIVATE.

A Protest

Editor Constitution: I cannot refrain from protesting against the paragraph of Jack Tarver of this date with reference to Elliott Roosevelt.

I have read his paragraph each day with much pleasure, but this one seemed so "out of character" as I had thought him to be, he has lowered himself greatly in my estimation. If the colonel is not entitled to the promotion he will not get it when his name is considered by the committee. The fact he is a son of the president will probably be a disadvantage to him in the committee, and largely because of such articles as Tarver's. If he is entitled to the promotion, then he should have it, regardless of any other consideration. I think the Tarver item was uncalled for, unnecessary and very unkind. I'm sorry he wrote it.

E. D. BORDERS.

Thanks to Tarver

Editor Constitution: Confusion, mounting in the public mind for 12 years past, has reached an all-time high.

What is this, now, about a brigadier general being somebody with a private dog and pony show? The oldtimers had a word for it. Their classic phrase was: A ten-dollar boy and a hundred-dollar watch. If Army promotions are stepped up to keep pace with matrimonial sprints, military titles will give out before the war ends.

A voted-down remnant of our people still prefer good taste in high places, and believe that privilege entails responsibility. These are called Roosevelt-haters.

With four more years, plus, of this political dispensation, we should give thanks for the saving grace of Jack Tarver's delightful wit. His droll coverage of human interest items makes a feast of unpalatable fact. In your editorial on Madame Perkins, who else could have inserted the hilarious suggestion that, if no one equally acceptable to CIO and AFL can be found, someone equally objectionable should be named. His portrait of Elliott, complete with dog and decorations, deserves a medal—if there is a medal left.

France Learns An Adage of War

PARIS.—It is possible to create an adage about war. It would go thusly: "Do not fight a war if it may be avoided. But, if one fights a war, then do not lose it." Perhaps it would be more effective to make it shorter: "Do not lose a war."

One begins to see this coming to Paris by air. There are many signs to show where the Germans were and how unrelenting was the attack on them and their positions. There are many villages apparently untouched. This is especially true if one sees them blanketed by snow early in the morning before the people have got out. The villages look then like so many doll villages on a Christmas card, snow-covered and still, unmarred by foot or vehicle. There are those villages which have been "touched" and this shows through the snow. Even though the bomb craters look like smooth, white dimples, one may see that the "touch" was hard and heavy.

At some of the airports, too, one may see how the German dromes were pounded. Even though the burned and twisted girders may have a delicate tracing of snow, giving them the appearance of magical iron grillwork, the mind may remove the snow and reveal the stark ugly "touch" of flame and explosion. One may use the mind to see what happened as Allied wrath poured on the Germans in the days before D Day and came even heavier with and after that day.

Burned-out, twisted tanks along the road have their virginal blanket of snow. It has seeped into the gashes and torn vents and laced them with delicate edgings of white. But even this desperate struggle by nature to cover the physical wrecks of war does not succeed. One may see the "touch" of war in the regions behind where the flame is constant.

Slow Improvement Conditions in France improve slowly. But they improve. It is difficult to hurdle the "touch" of war. The trains are beginning to run again, a few here and there. But many bridges still are down. The Germans took with them all the trucks they could. The Germans took many locomotives. Others were destroyed.

So, there is not much coal and no oil to spare and not much food. The second day here I went to call on French friends. We sat in the living room of their flat and talked. We kept on our overcoats. Our breath congealed into white vapor as we talked. We are used to that sight in our own winters, seeing our breath become a white vapor as we go out of our homes on cold, snowy mornings.

Yet, in all Paris, in all France, save in farmhouses with wood to burn, there IS no heat. The electric current is turned on but two hours per day. There is no time to cook the day's food.

So, we talked of this, our breaths floating about before us in the frigid air. A 20-month-old baby ran about, playing and laughing. His knees looked a little blue, but he ran and played, seeming not to notice.

The German police had come to that door once to take away a member of the family. That member had not been located for four days. She was expecting a baby in a few weeks and her family was frantic. She stayed there for two months, without much food, without any of the things expectant mothers should have. The child that had arrived was playing before us, red and blue with cold that his sweater and knitted pants would not keep out. He did not mind. He had learned even before he was born how to endure things.

Hard To Picture Outside the windows the street looked as snow-covered streets usually look. It was difficult to picture it as a battle street in which men had lain dead, their blood trickling into the gutters.

Those windows had remained shuttered and dark for eight days during the last period of fighting. All the windows and doors of Paris were closed and inhabitants crouched behind them because the Germans, with the Allied guns within sound and the forces of revolution loose in the city, fired at any window which was open.

There were stories of young men who hid in near-by forests to escape being sent into Germany as laborers in the factories. There were stories of torture and brutality until it seemed fitting our words should become visible as cold, frozen vapor so coldly terrible were the records of German inhumanity and brutality.

France is, in a sense, worse off than when the Germans were here. The Germans wanted French farm produce and French production. They paid for it liberally, with money they got by turning the printing presses. When they left they tried to make France of as little value as possible to the victors. They left too hurriedly to do a full job. But their touch is here in lack of transportation and in manpower. Several million Frenchmen are prisoners of war or toil in German plants.

Trudging back to one's hotel, one thought with greater gratitude of the men who fight on the line, winning a war for us. Because there is no greater adage for one to have than the one which reads: "Do not lose a war."

RALPH T. JONES

A Remarkable Book Written by a Clown

There is intended nothing derogatory in that word "clown." If you have read the book to which I refer you will understand. And just about the only way for your full understanding is for you to read the book.

It is called "Your Kids and Mine." It is written by Joe E. Brown, comedian of stage and screen whose trademark is his excessively wide mouth. It is the intimate and personal story of his travels all over the world, carrying laughter to our boys who are fighting for us. It is a written appreciation of those kids and it is one of the most moving and most beautifully written things I've found in print for a long, long time.

Joe E. Brown traveled 150,000 miles on and over the battle fronts of the world. His report is factual, which means it must tell, vividly, some of the horrors of war, but it is primarily about the boys, individually and en masse, the hundreds of thousands of lonely, homesick kids to whom he brought the surcease of laughter and the balm of a glimpse of home, for a little while.

Accidental Choice I don't know, quite, how it happened I took this book home to read. I was standing in the lending library, as we all stand now and then, just casually picking up a book, glancing at it and laying it down again. Most I returned to their places on the shelves, but a few I stacked in a little pile, my selections for a weekend's reading. And, when I got home, I found "Your Kids and Mine" among those I'd carried home.

Somehow you don't think of a professional funny man, the modern equivalent of the court jester, as a worth-while literary figure. So I opened Joe Brown's book rather casually. I read the first page. I read the first chapter. And I hated the interruption for dinner. I went back to the book as soon as the meal was over and didn't put it down again until I had read every word.

I don't think I was unusually emotional. But I must confess there were many places in this book where I choked on that old lump in the throat and I had to blink my eyes, rapidly, to clear away the fog which blurred the words.

He Lost His Son Joe Brown's own eldest son, Don Brown, was killed, you may remember, in a plane crash in this country.

There is a chapter, early in the book, telling how the news of his son's death came to Joe Brown, at a theater where he was playing his part as a professional funny man, a clown with a funny face, in Detroit. It tells, too, of the days immediately following and of his reaction to the shock.

I rather think it would be a blessing if every mother and father who has lost a son in this war, or who is destined yet to lose one, could read this chapter, written by a clown with a broken heart.

A Few Paragraphs I'd like to quote a few sentences, a few paragraphs, from that chapter:

". . . I felt that first stirring in me of the truth that many bereaved men and women have come to know this year. When you have lost your own boy all other lads become your sons. . . .

"The next few days were a dark abyss. I seemed to be falling through endless chaos; I couldn't get hold of myself. And then one night when I was alone I felt something I had never known before. It was the presence of God. It was a peace that passes understanding. I felt God's arms around me, in a way I cannot possibly describe. It is difficult for me even to mention such an experience as this. I force myself to do it only because it may help someone else in grief. . . .

"Perhaps this chapter about my boy doesn't belong in this book. I had planned not to tell this story, for it is our private grief, and I love the world too much to add one ounce of sorrow to it. But it is hard for me to report to you about your kids without mentioning mine. For I got to know your boys out on all the fronts because of my son.

"Besides, no grief is private any more. Something so big has happened to this world that none of us owns anything alone now. . . . The road back from sorrow is dark and lonely, but many must travel it this year and next. It helps to know there are others making the journey, not talking about it, not weeping where they can be seen . . . and going on with the work that must be done.

"And my work is laughter. Ever since I can remember I have wanted more than anything else just to make people laugh when they looked at me. . . . And now, during the last two years, I have wanted and have tried to give a laugh to every kid on every fighting front on this globe. . . .

"You have your work to do, and I have mine, and mine is to make you laugh. If I have not made you laugh in this chapter, you must forgive me; I'll try to do better. For that is the text of my war work, as it is the text of my life now, to banish tears with laughter."

The March of Dimes

ROBERT QUILLEN

Phony Goldbricks

It may indicate no more than masculine pride, or faith in feminine loyalty, but under ordinary conditions, jealous husbands seem far less numerous than jealous wives.

The jealous few are divided into three distinct groups.

First there is the fellow who feels inferior. For want of normal self-confidence, he thinks other men more attractive than himself and dreads their competition.

In the second and smaller group is the man whose emotions overpower him. He may be the strongest and toughest of he-men, but in love he is a weakling. His beloved dominates him completely.

In the third group, which is larger than you might suppose, there is the proud and passionate idealist who respects all women but has eyes for only one. He devotes his life to her.

But this fellow values his honor and his good name. He may be an arrogant aristocrat or an obscure nobody, but his standards are high and he requires perfection in the woman he loves.

Army officers and Red Cross officials tell us the morale of fighting men is injured by letters confessing or reporting the infidelity of their wives.

Official anxiety, reported in print, always make a great matter out of a small one, and we shouldn't accept these stories as an indictment of American womanhood. Men have gone adventuring and left their wives at home since time began, and all good women have remained as faithful as Penelope.

But if any fighting man has been betrayed, let us hope he is the proud kind of idealist who can say: "Funny how love can fool a guy. I thought she was a lady, and she turned out to be common. Well, it's good riddance. I'd hate to have that kind of woman as the mother of my kids."

GEORGIA EDITORS SAY:

GIVE THE PEOPLE A CHANCE TO TRY HOME RULE

(Walker County Messenger)

One of the livest measures before the present Georgia general assembly is home rule. For more than a dozen years this same issue has faced every session of the legislature, and each time it has been tabled or defeated, but interest and sentiment among the peoples of the counteis have increased, until now it is almost a demand that the representatives in the assembly take action to give the people of the cities, towns and counties a right to determine their own local affairs by the vote of the people in these localities themselves.

Injustices and burdens imposed by enacting measures of purely local content by the general body the past few years, has aroused sentiment among the people to pass on local measures themselves, whereby the majority may enact or defeat local measures.

By home rule is meant that the people in a town or county by their vote enacts laws that are of local application only, issues that affect the town or county.

About two-thirds of all legislation that comes before the legislature is local legislation, matters that could be handled more satisfactorily by local units than by the legislature, matters that should be determined by the localities affected. Such a law would release the general assembly for studying and enacting measures for the welfare of the whole state. As it is time is taken up on local matters, leaving less time for the big issues. Local matters also encourage the vicious, sometimes, trade and barter system among members of the whole body of the legislature.

We believe the people of Walker county are fully capable of taking care of their own local affairs, as we believe the people in the other counties are also, and we insist that our representatives in both branches of the general assemly now in session advocate and help pass the home rule measure, feeling that it is for the best interests of our people, and believing that our people in this county as well as in other counties want such a measure enacted.

JACK TARVER

What They Need Is Installment Plan

"Woman's place is no longer in the harem."

That is the battle-cry of the newly founded Congress of Arabian Women which convened for the first time last week in Cairo.

Significantly enough, the gals met in conventional American attire. Gone were the mosquito nettings and piano covers which have traditionally composed their wardrobes.

They want social, economic and political equality, the right to patronize barber shops and stand in line for cigarets right alongside the men.

Most of all, however, the ladies want their men to themselves. Share the wealth may be all right. But share the man . . . NO.

Arab divorces, it seems, have come just about as easily as the Hollywood variety. All a man has to do is say "I divorce you" three times to his wife and the job is done. . . . All in one breath, if a fellow has good wind.

The women want this changed so as to make it harder. And not by just requiring that the man say "I divorce you" four, five or even six times. They want divorce courts, property settlements, alimony and their own names back.

Most startling of all their demands, however, is their insistence that polygamy be limited to men who can afford it. Multiple marriage by poor men means that as many as four or five women suffer, they point out, urging that no man be allowed to marry unless investigation reveals he is financially able to.

Marriage only for those who can afford it? Thank goodness such revolutionary doctrine has never gained favor in this country. Matrimony is too cherished an institution to be thus almost universally outlawed.

GLADSTONE WILLIAMS

Panicky Germans Foresee Early Defeat

WASHINGTON.—To appreciate the feeling of panic which all of the European dispatches indicate is sweeping over the Reich, it is necessary only to point out that the Russians, as of the present writing, are now no farther from Berlin than Macon is from Atlanta—a meager 100 miles, more or less.

If one can imagine the hysteria that would exist in the Georgia capital with an invading army of several million men no more than a hundred miles away, you can get a fairly accurate picture of conditions in Berlin today.

Adding to the growing anxiety of the German nation is the fact that Gen. Eisenhower, with an equal number of men, is poised on the western boundaries of the country not more than 300 miles from the heart of the Reich—or the distance from Savannah to Atlanta.

From their observation of Eisenhower's movements, his reported concentration of troops in various sectors, the Germans are convinced that American and British forces are prepared to launch a great new winter offensive of their own, coinciding with the ponderous blows being struck by the Red army in the east.

Washington Feeling In Washington there is a feeling that giant new blows are in the making on the western front.

Immediately across the path of the two great Allied armies, the Russians in the east and British and Americans in the west, lie the two most important industrial areas of Germany—Silesia and the Ruhr valley, the Pittsburgh and the Detroit of the Reich.

A mortal blow would be delivered to Germany by the loss of either of these areas. Her capacity to wage further war for any considerable time would be all but destroyed.

Upper Silesia is already acknowledged by the Germans to be in Russian hands. Workers are fleeing plants in other cities of the area not yet reached by the Red army. The Ruhr valley, for all practical purposes, has been neutralized ever since Gen. Eisenhower's men pulled up within reach of the Rhine.

Thus the long-awaited day of doom is swiftly closing in on the Germans. The inexorable hand of retributive justice moves on to its inevitable end.

Germany's final downfall may be a matter of days or it may be delayed for a few months, depending on the success of giant Allied operations now in progress or in the making.

The panic which has seized Berlin in the face of the onrushing Red army tide is evidence enough that the Germans themselves realize the end is near. But for the iron grip of the Nazi warlords, Hitler and his gang, plus the fear of retribution at the hands of peoples they have outraged, the Germans might be expected to repeat history by throwing in the sponge as they did in the last World War.

As it is, while anything may happen, they probably will stand up to the end, fearful of the awful consequences of their past crimes.

Rioting But the reported panic in Berlin tells the story. Neutral sources tell of riotings in the capital city. Storm troopers are said to be shooting people down to maintain order. Thousands of workers and civilians are pouring into the city from evacuated areas in the path of the Russians. Government functions are hastily being shifted to other parts of the country. The Nazis are fleeing like rats leaving a sinking ship.

The true story may be even worse than this. Panic and hysteria are gripping the hearts of the Germans.

All of this is strangely reminiscent of the earlier days of the war when the Germans were running roughshod over Europe. The peoples of France, Poland, Norway, Denmark, Belgium and the Low Countries were seized with a similar panic.

Now the shoe is on the other foot. The warmongering tribes of the Reich are being brought to justice. They are being given a dose of the same medicine they have been passing out to other people for these past five years. The world will not bemoan the misery of their lot. They brought it on themselves.

It is not too much to hope that from their coming debacle the Germans will learn a lesson that will make them more law-abiding citizens of the world. The Russians are prepared to teach them that lesson. It is long overdue.

THOMAS L. STOKES

'It Can't Be Done' A Discouraging Cry

WASHINGTON.—One of the most discouraging aspects of the Jesse Jones-Henry Wallace uproar is something that doesn't have a thing to do with whether Mr. Wallace should have the job of secretary of commerce, but a lot to do with the recognized industrial and financial leadership of this country.

It is the frenzied wail of "it can't be done" which swelled up, almost like a hymn of hate, at the former vice president's confident prediction that the same dynamic America that has astounded the world by its creation of a war machine almost overnight, can also do the postwar job of providing a better means of living in the same bold spirit.

"Impractical! Idealistic! Visionary!"

That's the answer that comes roaring back to Henry Wallace's submission of a program which, taken all in all, is nothing more than many of our business and industrial leaders themvesives have envisioned and made speeches about from time to time, though naturally there is some disagreement about method.

The roar of cynicism and pessimism that they are now sending up must not be very encouraging to the millions of young men out fighting to preserve the country and its aspirations and ideals and who are coming back one day to take up their jobs, with the realization that some way has got to be found to create enough jobs to go around.

The amazing thing, too, is that the same big captains of industry who are wringing their hands and deploring the Wallace "dreams" are themselves presiding daily over the making of miracles in laboratory and factory to create all the multitude of things, the products of American skill in science and invention, that are needed to kill the enemy.

There were those who said to them, "It can't be done" only a few short years ago; said they couldn't produce as many airplanes, tanks, guns, or ships.

Yet they have done it. They supplied the know-how. The skilled hands were furnished by millions of men and women who believe in the dreams of Henry Wallace because they believed in the dreams of Thomas Edison and Henry Ford and the others who worked the miracles of yesterday that have become casually accepted facts today.

There's something a little phoney about all this fanfare of pessimism. Nor is it healthy at this time.

It is, to use a common phrase employed carelessly in another direction, "un-American."

Little bits of the not distant past rise in memory.

There was a day around here when the multitudes gathered to honor and applaud a young man by the name of Charles Augustus Lindbergh, who had actually flown an airplane from New York to Paris. The President pinned a medal on him. He was feted all over America. Hundreds of thousands, millions, of people crowded our streets just to see him.

And that was only 17 1-2 years ago!

His feat is a humdrum bit of routine today.

Then there were those other days not so long after, those soul-disturbing days of depression and hardship when our faith was tested.

During those days there were some of us who sat about a big table in the caucus room of the senate office building and heard the confessions of error and judgment and bad management from the big bankers and financiers of our nation, and saw revealed the betrayal, in some cases, of their stewardship.

They were not able to point the way out of our trouble, though they tried.

It was not the bankers who saved the situation, but a political leader who gave the people courage and hope so that they could pull together and work themselves out. But it must be said for the bankers and the captains of industry that they pitched in to help and some of them were able to accommodate their thinking to change and were ready with solutions here and there.

Bankers are naturally cautious, and that brake is needed. They have their place. But bank-mindedness alone can not meet the problems of today and tomorrow.

Something more is needed. And the people know it. There's no way to fool them. That's why Henry Wallace catches their imagination.

It Says Here

LONG BEACH, Cal.—This is a big shipbuilding center and they paid me a great honor by having me launch a ship. You know how celebrities use champagne to launch a big battleship? . . . Well, I broke a bottle of cherry pop on a surfboard.

They really launch the boats in a hurry here at California shipyards. . . . One guy parked his car here the other day, had some lunch and, when he got back, it had been in three campaigns in the South Pacific and was back in drydock for repairs.

I won't say they build them fast . . . but I said to one guy, "Ever hear of Henry J. Kaiser?" He replied, "Whom do you mean, 'Molasses?'"

Everybody you know got jobs in the shipyards. One woman with seven small kids was working as a welder. I asked her, "Wouldn't you rather be with your children, Madame?" She came back with, "Why do you think I took this job?"

The ocean around here is so full of ships there isn't even any room for the fish . . . in fact, it's so crowded, I saw two fish trying to join a beach club so they could go swimming!

WESTBROOK PEGLER

Radio Fakers

Continuing my running commentary on the dangerous attitude of the Blue network, one of our big national radio chains, toward miscalled news broadcasters specializing in excitement and falsehood, here are chapter and verse on a specific incident.

On the Sunday evening after the recent election, Drew Pearson, in his program over the Blue, said that Frank Sinatra had called at my room at the Waldorf Astoria on election night to take a punch at me for opposing his friend, Mr. Roosevelt, and, not finding me in, contented himself by mussing up the room.

This was an absolute fake.

Sinatra undoubtedly did get tight, as later inquiry showed, and returned from Sidney Hillman's PAC headquarters to his own apartment in the same hotel where he caused large disorder and was subdued by a house detective. In all large and well-conducted hotels, of which the Waldorf is one, all unusual incidents are investigated promptly and reports are made in writing to the front office. Such reports were made in this case.

A few days after Pearson's broadcast, I began to detect the technique of the New Deal Communist smear which puts an opponent in an unfavorable light without libelling him. An item had appeared in one of the New Deal gents' room columns reporting that Sinatra had refused to work in the Waldorf's Wedgewood room unless I checked out. There was no libel in that, either, but, like the Pearson broadcast, it was a smear.

So I inquired of Lucius Boomer, the managing director, who said that of course there was no truth in it and that any time anyone hired to sing, dance or do card tricks in the saloon attempted to edit the guest list he would get rid of the performer.

It occurred to me that the Blue network had some responsibility because, in the newspaper business, a reporter who brings in fakes is fired, the paper runs a "beg pardon" and that is that.

Instead of offering any redress, however, Mark Woods, one of the Blue's vice presidents, suggested that I write a piece about it. He said they could use the publicity but he made no offer to right a wrong.

That made me curious as to how radio treats people who have been smeared with political or personal motivation so I called on Chester La Roche, another vice president, whom I have known for years, and Ed Noble, a New Dealer, who had served in the Department of Commerce, and then acquired the Blue and became its president.

Both La Roche and Noble said Pearson was a headache to them because they thought he was malicious and unreliable but couldn't get rid of him because, by the use of such methods and material, he had acqired a large popular following.

Noble said an apology might be arranged but that if he gave one, Pearson would contrive it in such a manner as to make it worse than the original fake. He took a helpless attitude. La Roche cited an item which Pearson had broadcast about the automobile trip to Washington of John Foster Dulles, Tom Dewey's adviser on foreign relations during the campain to confer with Cordell Hull on solemn state business. He said Pearson had made it appear that Dulles had used the gas for this travel because he had a sore toe but that he, La Roche, knew that the trouble was much more serious, in fact a bad infection. He thought Dulles had suffered a serious injustice but that was the end of that.

At no time did they offer an independent retraction or correction but, in the end, they said that if I brought in affidavits from the Waldorf house detectives and the management, they would make one.

My point has been that the victim should not have to go to such extremes to disprove a fake. He might not know how to go about it. He might not have time. He might be away, even overseas.

Still, La Roche and Noble now insist that they are anxious to give fair and complete retractions when their commentators are proved unfair and that they review all their scripts for "appropriate news authority." In this case, there was no "news authority."

"With all the hardships our grandmothers endured, they never had to worry about a cigaret shortage"—Newspaper "paragraph."

Each passing age sets up the stage for some new craze or fashion—
The lesson stern the child should learn were once the parents' passion
They lived their days in righteous ways and proudly bragged about it . . .
So we've inferred from what we've heard, but we're inclined to doubt it.
Though grandma might have been all right, as pristine as the lily,
She knew her stuff quite well enough to knock the fellows silly.
She often snuffed, or gently puffed upon a pipe of Burley
Her clouds of smoke would make you choke or turn your whiskers curly.
At sweet sixteen, when young and green and supple as elastic,
She shook a hoof that jarred the roof and tripped the light fantastic—
And grandpas too, with mountain dew were often bright and merry
Or filled their skins with those great twins, the famous Tom and Jerry.
Oh, tell us not that we begot the evils that infest us,
That old folks wear crowns on their hair while we must wear asbestos—
All fault and sin did not begin this year for folks have had 'em
Since brother Cain looked on the slain, since Eve got gay with Adam.
Though we revere forefathers dear and give them veneration
We must admit they started it before this generation.

Medical Missionary Reports on India

THOMASTON.—It was a long journey from central India back to Upson county, Georgia, and not an easy one. First, there was a 1½-day journey to the port of embarkation, then 40 days on a troop ship that was originally designed for some 900 passengers but was carrying nearly 5,000. The greater part of that voyage was through tropical waters and there was almost no outside ventilation; the fans churned the hot, stale air over again and again.

In a cabin for two, there were 11 persons, men, women and two small girls. In the public rooms, used in peace time for foyers, writing rooms and dance halls, the cots were jammed so close together that there was scarcely room to walk between them. Every night the ship was blacked-out, of course, and there were constant lifeboat drills. The few civilians aboard had to be up for breakfast at six if they got any, lunch was at 11 and dinner at 5. But there were delicious meats, the thick sirloin steaks which are only a memory to people back home in the U. S., juicy beef roasts, crisp bacon.

The soldiers on board deserved them; they were coming back to the States on furlough after long months overseas service. The civilian passengers, too, were entitled to share those luxuries, for many of them were American missionaries who had stuck by their foreign posts through hardships and the danger of invasion. The remainder were young Chinese men and women en route to the U. S. for study. They had been flown out of starving, war-ravaged China and in America they would find—for the first time in eight years—safety, peace and plenty.

Arriving at last at a California port, the returning missionaries were met by the Red Cross and driven by automobile to Los Angeles. "They drove so slowly," said Dr. Girardeau, "that we could actually see the country. I was amazed and delighted. When I was at home five years before, everyone was tearing through the country as if they were fleeing from barbarians—my hair stood on end every time I set foot in a car. But this was wonderful. Is there a new speed limit?"

"Yes. Thirty-five miles an hour on highways. A good many of us like this quaint old custom," I answered. "But tell me, Ivylyn, how close the Japs came to the place where you lived in India. You used the term 'fleeing from barbarians'—did you have to do that?"

Since Dr. Girardeau and I had played piano duets together in grammar school, recited Virgil in high school and roomed together for a while at Agnes Scott, it was a bit difficult to keep the interview on a professional basis. I kept recalling that her capable hands—engaged in obstetrical work for the past 12 years among native women in a province in India—had been equally good at wielding a hockey stick, a tennis racquet, and playing Mozart sonatas. "Were you in danger from Jap invasion?"

"There was a big scare two years ago when they overran Burma and got as far as Assam—but they never came any closer. Of course Calcutta and Chittagong were bombed, but that wasn't actually close to us. You see, Jhansi, where our hospital is located, is in the United Provinces, almost in the geographical center of India."

"Were there any American troops stationed near you?"

"Yes, there was a training camp close by and though I saw only a few soldiers, one of the other missionaries entertained them frequently. She could make waffles and biscuits and cook fried chicken and the boys certainly went for that! You know, I never was much of a cook, and the servant problem over there is quite serious."

"No! Don't tell me it's bad in India, too—"

"It was bad in Jhansi. It is quite a large military center, you know—all the records for the British army are kept there, the offices are simply huge—and, of course, their officers got all the servants. All the cooks are English trained."

"That brings up the inevitable question, Ivylyn, of Indo-British relations. Are the British hated throughout India?" I asked.

"As a race, yes. As individuals—no."

"I want to know all about that. And about Ghandi—whether or not you think he is a fake—about the Calcutta famines, and the work at your hospital, and what is going to happen in India after the war."

"One at a time, please," she laughed. "You must remember that I'm not an expert on politics, but if 12 years' residence in a country gives one's opinions any weight."

"I've known persons who based their's on 12 weeks' residence," I replied with several severe twinges of conscience. "Now suppose we begin with the Indian attitude towards Britain."

"That brings in Ghandi, of course."

"Good. Let's go."

MORLEY CASSIDY

German Slaves Know One Language Well—Hatred

A TOWN IN LORRAINE.—The Land of Babel has found a common tongue at last.

In the long, bare messhall of the dislaced persons center here, a battered radio on a window sill is giving forth the evening news in French.

Gathered around it on wooden benches, men and women of 16 nationalities — Russians, Poles, Czechs, Hungarians, Italians, Yugoslavs and others from every corner of Europe—listen eagerly to every phase uttered by speakers few can understand.

In the mist of the news elderly Gregory Soroka, who used to be a chemist in Leningrad, slaps his knee in delight.

To the Russians gathered around he translates quickly the gist of the news. "Zhukov's within 80 miles of Berlin," he exclaims, "and Konev's tanks are fighting in Breslau."

There is a swift wave of eager comment, and laughing gestures of throat-cutting among the scores of Russians grouped at the end of the messhall. And then Milos Radosavovich, swarthy-faced Yugoslavian, leaning on crutches, translates Soroka's Russian into Yougoslav.

Someone else turns the Yugoslav into Hungarian and Hungarian into Roumanian, and then the whole messhall is filled with the babble of joyous comment, winks, sage nods, and first fingers drawn across throats. Nazi slaves, freed of chains at last, and hoping now to see home again after two, four or six years, discuss the latest news from the eastern front before retiring to their barracks.

One need not know any of the 16 languages represented in this group of forced laborers to see that all have learned one common tongue during their years of enslavement.

It is a language of hatred. However they may differ, as slaves they all share the common bond of a fierce loathing for the Nazi overlords who wrenched them from their homelands and beat, tortured or starved them.

The Nazis who sowed the seeds of race hatred are facing the harvest time, and a bumper crop it is. A passionate hope for vengeance is uniting people from the farthest corners of Europe. It seems for the moment at least to overshadow even the anxiety to return to their native cities and villages. And this is not as strange as it seems.

Home, to many of these unhappy people, has become a word filled with dark fears and a nightmare of memories. Dignified Soroka makes a hopeless gesture with his hands when the prospects of a return are mentioned.

"After all," he says through an interpreter, "most of us are afraid to know the truth about our homes. Most of us have had no word for two or three years, but we have seen much and can guess the rest."

The scene in this mess hall is only a fragment of the problem which presents itself in the unscrambling of Europe's uprooted populations. It is a scene which is being duplicated in every corner of territory reclaimed from the Germans.

In this camp alone there are bunks for 500. At another town a few miles away there are accommodations for 1,000. In the same vicinity is yet another, with room for 2,200.

Each of these camps has been virtually full the last three months. With a constant stream of German slave labor from the mines of Thionville and Longuyon, and the factories of the Saar and Moselle basins freed by American forces, similar camps thickly dot the whole northeast border of France and Belgium.

Here the displaced persons of all nations are cared for under a joint arrangement of the American Army and the French authorities.

Sleeping in crude, double bunks, in long barracks or huts, they get clothes through the American Red Cross or the American Army's Civilian Affairs Branch, if needed. They have French army doctors to guard their health, and French WACs to supervise their living arrangements.

The two meals a day are plain—supper last night was cabbage soup, fish and black bread—but the quantity makes it seem like heaven after the German rations of soup and a quarter of a pound of bread for working 12 hours a day.

After two or three weeks here, the wanderers are moved to larger camps in the interior of France, for reshuffling according to nationalities. And they take with them bitter tales of years of enslavement.

Radosavovich, a Yugoslavian ex-school teacher, is on crutches because he fled the factory compound in the Moselle valley with several hundred others when the American Army approached.

A pretty, 18-year-old Russian girl, Maza Dunja, interrupted to tell how she and her friends were beaten when they fell sick, and failed to appear for work in a metal factory.

Another interrupted in turn to tell how her brother was hanged before her eyes in the Ukraine, because another brother had turned Partisan. And on and on the stories go, piling up tragedy on tragedy until the listener is wearied by the sheer weight of massed woe.

But the victims who lived through these things do not weary so easily. They are remembering past years hour by hour and minute by minute—and waiting.

Gholston To Explain Highway Proposals

One day pretty soon, the Hon. J. Knox Gholston, of Comer, Ga., may give the legislature his solution to the problem of inequitable distribution of state highway money among counties. The senate already has invited this highway board member to outline his plan, and the house probably will do likewise. Gholston came into the news a few weeks ago when he charged that 100 of Georgia's 159 counties are being treated unfairly. His complaint chiefly was about the system built up in past administrations, and under which the present administration is working, and future administrations will work unless stopped by the legislature. That is the policy of giving to those who have—at the expense of those who have not.

The State Highway Department distributes gasoline revenue to counties for road maintenance purposes. Under some quaint law, the department hands out this money on a basis of state highway mileage in a county—and then proceeds, itself, to maintain the state roads. In other words, the state pays the county to repair the state highway, and then goes ahead and does the maintenance work itself.

It's Bad, All Agree This, as Gholston says, and Gov. Arnall and Speaker Harris agree, is bad. Those counties which have in the past been politically fortunate enough to obtain large mileage of state highways also get large portions of state money which they can use—not to maintain state highways—but to build county roads. And the less fortunate counties plug along on small portions of state roads and little state revenue. Gholston says the counties should be paid on a basis of total mileage, instead of state mileage within their boundaries. The highway department cannot remedy the unfair method of distributing money It's up to the legislature to change the law under which the department is forced to operate. In attempting to place all counties on an equal footing, however, the general assembly will have to remember postwar needs for four-lane highways across the state. The legislature would not want to halt construction of a major tourist highway at the line of some presently-favored county, until a less-favored county could pave enough unimportant rural roads to catch up on its share of state money. Gov. Arnall says the general assembly will have to make up its mind whether to use a small surplus of state highway money to build four-lane highways or to distribute to unfavored counties.

But the fact remains that two-thirds of Georgia's counties are not getting their just share of state road money. Maybe after hearing Gholston speak the legislature can arrive at some kind of a solution.

Labor Clash Menaces Work Draft

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—(AP)—A proposed compromise of the controversial "closed shop" question was rejected by labor union spokesmen today as the house began debate on limited national service legislation.

The fate of the bill, which empowers draft boards to assign men of 18 through 45 to war production jobs, is considered highly uncertain. The house is expected to vote on it Thursday or Friday.

Southern Democrats refused to budge from their contention the bill would be unsuitable without an amendment permitting men assigned to jobs to work in a closed shop without joining a union. Such a provision once was approved by the House Military Committee, but was later withdrawn.

Rep. Wadsworth, Republican, New York, seeking to soften organized labor's opposition to it, proposed that it be rewritten to include language underscoring the inviolability of existing collective bargaining and other labor laws.

"It is still an anticlosed shop amendment," commented Rep. Philbin, Democrat, Massachusetts, who said he bespoke the views of organized labor.

Rep. Cox, Democrat, Georgia, complained that the legislation "fails woefully to satisfy the demands of public opinion," and is "hardly more than a gesture and an illusion." Cox is leading the fight for restoration of the "anticlosed shop" amendment.

Recalling that leaders of the Army and Navy have requested the legislation, Rep. Smith, Democrat, Virginia, said the house must decide "whether to give a vote of no confidence to the general staff."

The Virginian, supporting the drive for more stringent labor controls, said he would vote for the bill regardless of its final shape.

The contention of Chairman May, Democrat, Kentucky, of the Military Committee that the legislation would help solve the current manpower problem was disputed by Rep. Short, Republican, Missouri, a committee member.

"We have not a shortage of manpower, but a waste of manpower," the Missourian declared. "This bill seeks to solve a local problem on a national basis. It would subject 99 per cent of the laboring men of this country between the ages of 18 and 45 . . . to rigid regulations and compulsion in order to reach the other one per cent that is now needed for work."

The need, Short said, is not more legislation "but some honest, efficient and fearless administration."

"Are we going to raise up a Hitler in America to get rid of one abroad?" Short asked. "This conscription is the quintessence of the Nazi-Fascist philosophy we are fighting against."

chief, answered the alarm and at personal risk kept the flames from spreading outside the main building.

The building which the fire destroyed was of one story. On account of the exploding lacquer it was soon aflame throughout its length. When the firemen brought it under control, its contents were completely destroyed and the building itself gutted.

Because of the spectacular nature of the fire, large crowds of people gathered in the vicinity. Fulton county police took control and kept the crowd out of danger.

How'd you like to own a "Flying Jeep" after the war?

1. The Army nicknamed this amazing plane the "Flying Jeep." It can take off and land almost "on a dime." They use it for many jobs: as the "eyes upstairs" for artillery units . . . for laying Signal Corps wire over jungle and impassable terrain . . . and for photo and reconnaissance work. It has even hovered over battling tanks in Burma, observing and directing the conflict from the air.

2. When the Army wanted a flying ambulance to evacuate casualties from small jungle clearings and inaccessible battle zones, the versatile "Flying Jeep" took on this job, too. Many a wounded American boy is alive and well today because this tiny Consolidated Vultee plane speeded him to the base hospital in minutes, instead of the hours it would have taken stretcher bearers to make the arduous trip.

3. Your postwar "Flying Jeep" may not look exactly like this. But you can be certain it will be safe, easy to fly, and an economical family plane. Well suited, too, for vacations, inter-city travel, for aero clubs and "Fly-it-Yourself" stations . . . for farmers, sowing and dusting crops . . . for forest patrol and fire spotting . . . for policing and traffic control . . . and for survey work . . . an ideal all-purpose small plane.

Don't miss it! MOSS HART'S Winged Victory

The screen version of Moss Hart's great stage hit—presented by 20th Century-Fox, in association with the United States Army Air Forces. "Winged Victory" is the name given by the heroes in the film to the Consolidated Vultee Liberator bomber used in the picture.

Produced by Darryl F. Zanuck . . . Directed by George Cukor

4. The Axis didn't think that America, so unprepared, could produce so much, so fast. If they ever start another war, they will not forget their fatal error. They will know that to win, they must knock out the United States first.

But they will not be apt to start another war if we keep America strong, invincible.

The mere fact that we possess and maintain a powerful Army, Navy, and Air Force will discourage such attacks as we suffered at Pearl Harbor.

For Air Power is one of our best guarantees of a lasting peace in a world where vengeful sparks of aggression may still be smoldering a generation hence.

ADVANCING REDS UNPREDICTABLE

SPOKANE, Wash., Jan. 29. (AP)—A fourth grader wasn't satisfied with teacher's answer that the Russians were about 100 miles from Berlin.

"That," he protested, "was an hour ago."

The WORRY CLINIC

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE

(Will some patriotic and wealthy American please endow a scientific dating bureau to help promote marriages between suitable men and women who otherwise will likely die childless? We need to promote more marriages and more American-indoctrinated children among our good stock.)

CASE E-274: Alicia W., aged 23, has an excellent suggestion.

"Several weeks ago you mentioned the need for a Scientific Dating Bureau to help eligible men and women make friends with desirable members of the opposite sex.

"My own experience is proof of the need for such an organization. As soon as I was graduated from college, I found myself teaching school in a strange community, far from home.

"I was very lonely. Lack of opportunity for social contacts affected my health to such an extent that I consulted a nerve specialist in New York city.

"The specialist said what I needed was more dates and social life. But where to go? How to obtain dates?

SCIENTIFIC BUREAU

"Fortunately for me, a friend of minte invited me to become a USO hostess. Of course, I accepted the invitation readily, and my problems have disappeared.

"My purpose in bringing this to your attention is to suggest that after the war is over the USO be converted into a social agency such as your Scientific Dating Bureau.

"It could thus continue to serve the social and romantic needs of unmarried adults, just as the department stores serve our merchandise needs."

A LIVING MEMORIAL

There is much merit in Alicia's suggestion, and I should like to see such a practical approach to a Scientific Dating Bureau, for the latter would eliminate many of the psychiatric complaints in America, as well as help establish happy homes where American-indoctrinated children could be reared to help safeguard our future.

Some of you patriotic Americans with wealth could erect a living memorial to your loved ones by endowing a non-profit organization to help them make friendly contacts with suitable members of the opposite sex.

Thousands of letters come to me from men and women, asking for advice about how to meet desirable members of the opposite sex.

Because letters to me must be treated as privileged communications, I am not entitled to give the name of an attractive, suitable male to an attractive, eligible girl, much as I have often wished to do so. Besides, this office hasn't the funds with which to operate such a Scientific Dating Bureau.

INSURANCE FOR AMERICA

To operate most efficiently, such a bureau should have a central office, plus field agents in the various cities or counties.

Applicants would then fill out appropriate questionnaires revealing their age, sex, religious preferences, etc., and include a late medical certificate from a local physician, plus three references and a late photograph.

The field agent would then visit the applicant and double check his references, after which he would send a written report to the central office. The applicant would then be listed under a code number.

Anybody wishing to make friends could then be introduced to several suitable members of the opposite sex. Happy marriages would thus be promoted among millions of excellent men and women who now seem destined to die childless. Will some wealthy patriot thus insure America's future?

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of The Constitution, enclosing a long 3c stamped, addressed envelope and a dime to cover typing or printing costs when you send for one of his psychological charts.)

A touch of the Gay Nineties is seen in some spring clothes and accessories. The checked taffeta pillbox, dickey, gloves, bag and umbrella carry the feeling in the costume at left. However, the three-tiered skirt and short jacket with extremely wide revers are reminiscent of that period, too. Observe the new sleeve treatment which you shall be seeing as the season advances; it is a deep square-cut armhole into which a drop-shouldered sleeve is set.

Checks again are seen at right in this cape and wrap-around skirt, worn over a one-piece black dress. The cape fits the shoulders snugly and attaches to the skirt with galluses. Janie Adams is the model.

These and other new costumes for spring will be shown at the first of a new series of luncheon fashion shows at the Biltmore Wednesday. This week's show is to honor Betsy Blackwell, editor in chief of the fashion magazine Mademoiselle on the 10th anniversary of its publication.

For further information about these clothes, call Winifred Ware, Fashion Editor, WA. 6565.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By ALICE DENTON JENNINGS

March 21-April 19 (ARIES)—It will not pay to take chances this morning. You may want to make changes, because you are tired of the same old rut. Use tact and diplomacy in your dealings. The afternoon and evening hours favor social affairs, travel and relaxation.

April 20-May 20 (TAURUS)—Solid, substantial and active interests may be advanced previous to 12:43 noon. You should work in a well-ordered way and find comfort around those who are dependable. Between 12:43 p. m. and 10:18 p. m. is likely to be a time of disorder. After 10:18 p. m. be especially cautious in social matters.

May 21-June 20 (GEMINI)—Miscalculations and oppositions surround activities previous to 7:35 p. m. and any changes contemplated will be best held off. Between 7:35 a. m. and 2:44 p. m. slightly favors work that can be done quickly, also dealings with relatives.

June 21-July 22 (CANCER)—Storms of anger may easily appear before 1:06 p. m. and this is a time to be exceedingly cautious in every way. You are likely to hear disheartening things between 1:06 p. m. and 6:45 p. m. After 6:45 p. m. is an auspicious time for travel and ordinary business matters.

July 23-Aug. 22 (LEO)—Until 6:50 p. m. caution should be observed around liquids and a great effort put forth to understand others. Between 2:28 p. m. and 9:41 p. m. is auspicious for finances and work where popularity is an asset, and for dealings with superiors.

Aug. 23-Sept. 22 (VIRGO)—Home conditions, business relations, social and fraternal interests should move harmoniously previous to 10:03 a. m. Between 10:03 a. m. and 5:18 p. m. does not favor land transactions, dealings with older people, chemicals and liquids. After 5:18 p. m. is slightly successful for continuing ordinary routine.

Sept. 23-Oct. 22 (LIBRA)—The period previous to 2:30 p. m. favors beautifying the house, putting into effect new ideas and methods in business. After 2:30 p. m. favors finishing up old matters and for exercising patience in all things.

Oct. 23-Nov. 21 (SCORPIO)—Previous to 10:15 a. m. you will not only be easily annoyed, but will find that others disturb you, and therefore a critical attitude surrounds you and your affairs. New beginnings at this time may encounter disruptive tendences.

Nov. 22-Dec. 21 (SAGITTARIUS)—This should be a favorable day for grasping opportunities and making advances. Between 11:32 a. m. and 5:08 p. m. avoid irregularity in business affairs.

Dec. 22-Jan. 19 (CAPRICORN)—Until 11:38 a. m. affairs in your life are apt to meet controversies. After 11:38 a. m. you obtain a better perspective on life and can direct your energies along peaceful lines. A favorable period for making contracts and mechanical ideas.

Jan. 20-Feb. 18 (AQUARIUS)—An excellent day for making steady progress, for organizing and systematizing your affairs. Friendly contacts should be renewed or established. An auspicious day for improving personal interests.

Feb. 19-March 20 (PISCES)—A feeling of freedom, wanting to expand, or a desire to overspend regardless of consequences, should be avoided today. During the evening hours be careful around fire, or in travel.

WFA LABOR OFFICE TO STAY HERE BUT PERSONNEL WILL BE REDUCED

The Labor Procurement Office of the War Food Administration will not be transferred from Atlanta to Philadelphia as announced here last week, War Food Administrator Marvin Jones has advised Reps. Peter, of Florida, and Robert Ramspeck, of Decatur.

The labor office here employes more than 150 clerical and executive workers, a majority of whom are permanent residents of Atlanta. Many of the employes declared their intentions of resigning instead of moving to Philadelphia.

The proposed move to Philadelphia was hotly contested by Georgia and Florida members of the house of representatives, and by The Constitution, which published an editorial last Thursday questioning the feasibility of the move. Florida opposition was based on the contention the office handles procurement of Bahaman labor, and it would not be practical to handle that matter from Philadelphia.

Commissioner of Agriculture Tom Linder said yesterday he had received wires from Georgia congressmen, advising him of the retention of the office "with a reduction in personnel."

Linder said he received telegrams from Sen. George, Sen. Russell and Reps. Tarver, Cox, Brown, Gibson and Wood. None estimated the scope of the personnel reduction.

Firemasters Study Crisis

Anticipating passage of a national service act which will further deplete manpower of the Atlanta fire and police departments, the Atlanta board of firemasters has proposed:

1. Amendment of existing civil service acts in both departments to allow temporary employment of applicants who fail to meet physical standards without giving such employes civil service status.

2. Establishment of an "extra board" through which present members of the fire department could work double shifts on a voluntary basis and receive additional compensation for such service.

Faced with the prospect that passage of the act would take all men under 26 years of age from the fire department and possibly from the police force, the board last night instructed Councilman James E. Jackson, board member, to press for amendment of the police department civil service laws so as to exclude temporary appointees from civil service rights.

Board members also discussed the "extra board" feature, but withheld action pending developments. It was indicated it would be tried if the manpower crisis becomes more critical.

Jackson told the board that all men under 30 are in danger from proposed new drafts, but that some of those over 30 may be saved.

Fire Chief Styron said that only 325 men are now on the department, a number which is 24 below the normal complement.

Harry Phillips was elected fire-marshal succeeding M. H. Carter, retired, and Major R. C. Endicott, stationed at Jacksonville with the Army military police, was designated as assistant marshal. J. F. Seagraves was named temporary assistant and will serve until Endicott returns to the Atlanta department. R. B. Megee and Roy L. Parker were elected as fire inspectors to complete the fire prevention bureau personnel.

J. M. Barnwell Jr., fireman, was suspended for five days.

Two Atlantans Elected Air Express Executives

Two Atlanta men have been elected officers of Southeastern Air Express, Inc. They are Cody Laird, vice president, and B. T Smith, treasurer.

Development of a seven-state airline system is planned by Southeastern Air Express, in cooperation with Columbus Airways, Inc., of Columbus, Ga. The Southeastern system proposes to link 70 cities in Georgia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi and Tennessee on a 4,591-mile network, with two schedules daily.

RFC Will Guarantee Loans for War II Vets

World War II veterans unable to obtain business loans from their local bankers may apply to the Atlanta office of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation for guarantee of such loans under the "GI Bill of Rights," M. E. Everett, agency manager, has announced.

The RFC will review applications to banks for loans to buy supplies, equipment or tools to be used by veterans in pursuing a gainful occupation. The government will guarantee repayment of such loans up to 50 per cent, in amounts not exceeding $2,000.

School Committee Okays $4,466,226 Budget for 1945

The Atlanta board of education is scheduled to approve the 1945 city school budget, calling for an over-all expenditure of $4,466,226, at a special meeting to be held tomorrow.

Finance committee members last night approved the tentative sheet as prepared by Thomas W. Clift, school business manager, and the administrative staff, and voted to take it to the special board session.

Bonus payments amounting to $376,156 for the first six months of the year for the 1,800 school employes was a major feature of the new sheet. It is proposed that the bonuses, providing 22 1-2 per cent increases for those making up to $250 monthly and 17 1-2 per cent for those making in excess of $250 a month, be continued for the entire year if school department receipts justify.

The largest single item is $3,301,383 for instructional service.

SALLY FORTH Says:

Mr., Mrs. Lehman Welcomed To Atlanta Social Ranks

Atlanta is welcoming, one by one, for residence, a number of charming Britishers, and with each new arrival Sally is reminded over again that there are few people on earth, if any, whose voices, intonations and accents can remotely be compared with the beauty of the cultured English.

The latest addition to the colony is attractive Mrs. James Lehman and her husband, who is originally from Dayton, Ohio. The former Helen Bruce, prominent in English and Australian music and dramatic circles, was born in Sidney, Australia. Chaperoned by her mother and father, Mrs. Lehman, who is an only daughter, studied in England and on the continent and has lived practically all over Europe, particularly in France and Italy. In 1939, she and her parents returned, via South Africa, to their native Australia. At this time, Mr. Lehman, who was a representative of the Coca-Cola Company, was living in Sidney. A mutual friend of the Lehmans called on Helen one evening and desiring that she and Mr. Lehman should meet, telephoned him, and the two were introduced over the wire.

Mr. Lehman made a dinner engagement on the spot, and it isn't necessary to say that the friendship flourished rapidly, for they were married in two months' time. Shortly thereafter, Mr. Lehman was transferred to New York, where he and his lovely blond bride lived for three years, only to return at the end of that time to Rio de Janeiro, where they resided for another three years. Last November, Mr. and Mrs. Lehman were again transferred to the States, and after spending ten days in New York City, they came to Atlanta, where Mr. Lehman took up his duties with the Coca-Cola Company in a research capacity.

By the kindness of friends, they managed to find a small apartment and, during the three months which have elapsed, they have made a wide circle of admiring friends, including especially Mrs. Alan Tully, who was also born in Australia and who attended school with several close friends of Mrs. Lehman. Last week Mrs. Tully gave a morning coffee for Mrs. Lehman, and it was quite a coincidence that she should have chosen, as the date for her party, Australia Day, which is the anniversary of the founding of that country. The date also marked Gen. Douglas MacArthur's birthday, and that of Mrs. Lehman's brother, Peter.

Mrs. Lehman has two brothers, Flight Cmdr. Peter Bruce and Flight Lt. James Bruce, both in the RAAF. Besides her musical talent, she was most outstanding, both in England and Australia, in radio work with the British and Australian broadcasting companies. Her husband, who is of Pennsylvania Dutch extraction, attended Cornell and was graduated from Perdue University.

Last Saturday, when Mr. and Mrs. Lehman entertained a group of friends at an aperitif party at the home of their close friends, Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Heath, on Peachtree road, though not intentional, it was significant for two reasons. It was their first party since moving to Atlanta and, also, their first since Mrs. Lehman became an American citizen.

FOOTBALL STAR IN THE MAKING

Robert Grady, seven-year-old son of Harriet and Henry Grady, is more enthusiastic about playing football than almost anything in his daily routine. The other day while having his lunch with his mother and elder brother, Henry Jr., he suddenly stopped between bites and excitedly said: "Mother, I just pray that next year I can be in the background."

At first Harriet didn't know what he was talking about. Then, all at once, it dawned on her that it was the backfield Robert meant instead of the background.

"Short Cut" Dog Frank Rozier, of Waynesville, is proud of his pack of fox hounds and, particularly, Red, his "short cut" dog.

Ward and Mack Rozier, leading sportsmen brothers of Brunswick, are easily persuaded to go on a fox hunt. They are first cousins of Frank. They figured it might be a diversion for members of our party to take part in a hunt. Jim Conzelman had never listened to the dogs before.

"Frank's got a fine pack," Ward Rozier pointed out, "and the weather is just right. Fox hunting with a full moon in the sky is mighty pretty."

Ward explained about Frank's "short cut" dog.

"Red is a little smarter than the rest of the hounds," Ward declared. "When the pack makes a wide circle in the swamp, Red travels in a straight line and leaves them all behind. He's a smart dog, old Red is."

In fox hunting there's a lead dog, strike dog, trail dog, etc., but not many packs include a "short cut" hound. And I'm not sure the lead dog approves of one anyway. Queen is Frank Rozier's lead dog. Ball, a spec, is the strike dog and Rue, black and tan, is the trail dog.

The other night the pack gave chase to a fox at 9 o'clock and they ran it until 1 in the morning.

Frank Rozier, listening intently, would tell the party when Red, the "short cut" dog, was going to leave the rest of the pack. "You'll hear him baying out in front in a few minutes," he said. And, sure enough, it would happen every time.

For great sport I heartily recommend fox hunting by moonlight in coastal Georgia.

A Desired Shortage The male populace of Sea Island is just as happy there is a shortage of shotgun shells. If there were shells there would be skeet shoots and that wouldn't be so comforting to the men.

For the wife of Lt. Col. William B. Mershon, who has a well-filled trophy case in the beautiful Sea Island home, often defeated men in Fort Riley skeet shoots.

In a Kansas tournament, Rene Mershon defeated all the men.

This is, of course, the exception rather than the rule. There probably isn't a male scatter gun devotee her equal on Sea Island or St. Simons.

That makes the Mershons quite prominent in the island's sporting life. The colonel, veteran U. S. Army Cavalry instructor, is the leading rider of the section.

The colonel is devoted to Sea Island but he misses the drag hunts of Fort Riley. When overcome by nostalgia, he sets up his movie projector and views color films of the Riley fox hunts. They are spectacular affairs.

The blessing of the hounds is a striking feature. There is a certain majesty to a chase. And a pack of dogs in full cry is music to the ears of the devoted fox hunter. It is the grand opera of the outdoors.

A rugged individualist is Col. Mershon. Asked one night recently if he wished to view the moon, he replied:

"There are only three views worth seeing. One is down the barrel of a shotgun, another is between the ears of a horse, and a third is bottom of a highball glass."

Outdoor Cooking John Life, famous outdoor cook, gives a new meaning to a mullet and actually puts it in the pompano class with an expert blending of wood smoke and a certain sauce.

Life's barbecued mullet is famous in coastal Georgia. He also can do things to a pork shoulder, a lamb roast and other cuts. But he prepares mostly mullet today, as fish is not on the rationed list of foods.

As one who has sampled quite a bit of smoked mullet before, I didn't figure John Life or anyone else would turn out a different tasting fish. But he has a different type of preparation and he really glorifies a fish that is usually looked upon with scorn in better gourmet circles.

Bob Perrott obtained Life's services as a compliment to the Jim Conzelmans just before they departed for home. It was one of the culinary highlights of their coastal trip.

Another dish, not widely known in that section, will meet with favor in any company. And that is crabmeat stew. There aren't too many recipes offered in the cookbooks, but I happened to stumble across a good one not long ago.

One simply obtains a pound of the clawmeat of the crab. The other ingredients are a quart of milk, a bit of butter, salt and pepper, lemon, garlic salt and a spot of sherry wine. The crabmeat is added at the last and it's desirable not to let the milk boil. Served piping hot, this is a dish fit for a king.

The demand for seconds brings a glow to the face of the cook. Fishermen acquainted with the dish never complain when they hook crabs instead of trout.

Vultees Beat Loreleis, 29-15, For 33d Win

Atlantans Hold 11-8 Halftime Lead; Alline Pate Stars

By "SON" MAXWELL

The National AAU champions had a close call last night at Sports Arena, but experience and condition paid off in the end and the Nashville Vultee girls won a 29-15 decision over a fighting Lorelei team of Atlanta.

It was the Vultees' 33rd consecutive triumph, having beaten the Sports Arena Blues Sunday, 29-17, in their first appearance in Atlanta.

To say the Vultees were worried would be putting it mildly, for Lorelei led, 11-8, at the half. And soon after the second half got under way, Sara Killian dropped in a field goal from the side and the champs were behind, 13-8.

However, Jo Houston, who had done a swell job of stopping Alline Banks Pate for the first half, tired, and Elah Whitaker, captain of the Loreleis, fouled out. In fact, Houston held Pate to a single foul goal the first half. However, with Houston and Whitaker out of the game, Pate started hitting 'em, and from then on it was Katie bar the door. Pate pivoted for a two-pointer at the foul line, dropped in one from the right, added one point on a foul shot, dropped in a field goal on another pivot, shot a foul and then added a two-pointer on a crip coming in under the basket.

That was the story of the ball game. After this brief splurge by Pate, five times an All-American, the Vultees were in front, 20-13, and from there on out it was merely a question of how big the margin would be.

Sara Killian and Jo Houston had five points each to lead the Loreleis, but Pate dropped in 13 for the winners with Hamblen, a substitute, accounting for eight.

There was some balm for the Loreleis in the fact that Pate, for one of the few times this year, did not outscore the rival team. The final standing was Pate 13, Lorelei 15.

Purple Eleven, Smithies Feted Together

By CHARLIE ROBERTS.

Never the twain shall meet except in combat, or so we had been told; but last night we saw it with our own eyes—Boys' High and Tech High football teams "broke bread" at a mutual festive board and had the time of their young lives—together.

Members of the Purple Hurricane, kings of southern high school football, and the Village Smithies, who tied them for the city championship by besmirching the champs' record with a 13-13 stalemate, had a high old time of it—"hand in hand" as it were—as they partook of matchless barbecue and Brunswick stew with coaches, teachers and alumni of the two schools at a fine fete at Wiley Moore's famous and beautiful Lakemoore, and then sat back to enjoy the technicolor pictures of the 1944 Georgia Tech-Navy game, shown by that prince of a fellow, Joe Pittard.

The novel get-together was sponsored by the Tech High Alumni Association, of which Councilman Roy Bell is president. Roy served as the capable toastmaster and introduced Ed Danforth, who made the principal speech of the evening.

Others who made impromptu speeches at the informal affair included Principal W. O. Cheney, of Tech High; Dr. Rufus Askew, Boys' High Alumni Association president; Charlie Brown, chairman of the Fulton county commissioners; Coach Allen Shi, of Tech High; Coach Shorty Doyal, of Boys' High, and Joe Pittard, one of the coaches on Georgia Tech's fine staff.

The fete was a huge success in every way, and while we went for the fireworks we enjoyed the good fellowship which was evidenced far more. There never has been another Boys' High-Tech High meeting like it, but may there be many more. To which everyone present no doubt will say "Touche!"

OPENING TILT AT 7 P. M.

Smithies, Purples Hosts to Columbus 5s

By BERT PRATHER

The best prep basketball program of the season thus far is booked for Henry Grady court tonight.

Boys' High and Tech High, co-host to the visiting teams at the Grady hardwood during the cage season, are slated against Jordan and Columbus High respectively tonight and plenty of interesting action is expected to take place.

The Smithies and Columbus will open festivities at 7 p. m. and then the Purples tie into league-leading Jordan in the finale an hour or so later.

Although Jordan took them over the jumps in their last meeting at Columbus, the Purples are in a good position to even matters tonight, that is, if Tommy Touchstone who was recently returned to the squad, retains his eye for the hoops. In the last two starts, Tommy poured in a total of 68 points for the Hurricane cause. If he is right tonight, the Jordan boys will be in for a rough session.

Tech High and Columbus should put on a fairly even contest, with possibly a slight advantage going to the Smithies due to their early season win over Columbus. Coach Bruner's boys have been showing plenty of improvement in their last few starts.

Marist and G. M. A. will clash at 4:30 this afternoon at College Park in another Big Seven game. The winner of this game will move out of the cellar for the time being at least.

Other games scheduled today are as follows: Russell vs. West Fulton at West Fulton, 4 p. m.; Commercial vs. College Park at Fulton High court (three games) starting at 7 p. m., and Hapeville vs. Fulton at Russell (two games) starting at 7:30 p. m.

Washington Seminary plays the Druid Hills girls at Druid Hills in an afternoon contest, starting at 3:30 p. m.

Tech Rallies To Nip Tulane; Collier Stars

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 29.—(AP)—Georgia Tech's Yellow Jackets came from behind on a 12-point scoring spree in the closing minutes of play to defeat Tulane's Greenies, 47 to 38, in a late afternoon intra-Southeastern conference basketball game here today.

Trailing 33 to 35 with five minutes of play remaining, the Jackets counted with six consecutive field goals to wreck Tulane's chances of victory. Forward Dick Collier tied the score at 35-35, Durand Holliday put Tech ahead 37-35, and Billy Williams got three field goals and Holliday another 2-pointer before Tulane scored again.

Collier won individual scoring honors with six field goals and three charity tosses for 15 points. Echols, Tech guard, got 10 points, while Forwards Chuck Welborn and Don Duncan paced Tulane with 9 apiece.

Suggs Runner-Up In Miami Meet

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 29.—(AP)—Mrs. Ruth May, of Nepsonit, Long Island, who won the second flight play last year in the Helen Lee Doherty women's golf tournament, came back today to snatch medal honors.

Her two-over-women's-par 78 gave her a one stroke edge over little Louise Suggs, of Lithia Springs, Ga., one of the advance favorites.

Bulldogs Lose To Kentucky

LEXINGTON, Ky., Jan. 29.—(AP) The University of Kentucky basketball team, victim of one-point defeats in two of its last three games and extended to win in the third, bounced back into the victory column tonight with a 73-to-37 Southeastern conference triumph over Georgia.

Coach Adolph Rupp used 16 men in defeating the Georgians, giving his regulars a rest after their stirring comeback against Notre Dame Saturday night before the Irish won, 59-58, in an overtime period.

Georgia, which previously had won only three of nine games, was completely outclassed. Kentucky had piled up a 41-17 lead at the midway mark and continued the pace in the second half.

The victory gave the Wildcats a records of two wins and one defeat in conference play, having lost to Tennessee by one point.

Georgia End, Poschner, Is Missing in Action

ATHENS, Ga., Jan. 29.—Lt. George Poschner, Georgia's great All-American end of 1942, has been missing in action in Europe since Jan. 8, it was learned here today.

Poschner, who teamed with Frankie Sinkwich to give the Bulldog eleven one of the most feared attacks in football annals, began military service in June, 1943, after graduation from the university. He trained at Fort Benning and went overseas in July, 1944, serving with the Seventh Army in France. He was advanced from second to first lieutenant after going overseas. His brother, Cpl. John Poschner, is serving in New Guinea.

Although no official word of Lt. Paschner's plight has been received here, an excerpt from a Youngstown, Ohio, paper told of the news received by Mrs. Rose Poschner there. Youngstown is also the home town of Sinkwich.

A third string blocking back as a freshman in 1939, the 180-pound athlete showed signs of greatness in 1940 and won a regular berth the following year as an end, opposite Van Davis, right end.

He is recognized as one of the most outstanding flankmen in University of Georgia history, and his catch of a touchdown pass against Alabama at Grant Field in 1942 was one of the highlights of a great career.

Lt. Bill Dudley Is Visitor Here

Bill Dudley, former All-American football player at the University of Virginia and later a star with the Pittsburgh Steelers, of the National Professional Football League, was a visitor in Atlanta last weekend.

Bill, who is a second lieutenant and a flight instructor at Brooks Field, Texas, came here Saturday with two students on a cross-country flight and spent the night with Erwin Dickey, his friend and old college roommate. Erwin played guard at Virginia while Dudley was starring in the backfield. While here, Dudley told friends that Charlie Trippi, of the Third Air Force Gremlins, was one of the best players he ever performed against. Dudley was a member of the Randolph Field Ramblers last season, a team which defeated the Gremlins.

CAGERS CONFESS GAMBLING 'DEAL'

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—(UP) Assistant District Attorney Edward A. Heffernan, of Kings county (Brooklyn) said tonight that two Brooklyn college basketball players had confessed that they had made a deal with two gamblers on behalf of their team to throw tomorrow night's game at Boston against Akron University for $3,000.

Five players on the team were involved in the deal, Heffernan said, and the players questioned, Bernard Barnett, 22, and Larry Pearlstein, 20, said that they had received $1,000 "on account" with a promise that the remaining $2,000 would be delivered after the game.

Heffernan said the players had told him that they had been offered the money, not only for losing, but for agreeing to drop the game by a "given number of points." Thus bookmakers, not involved in the deal would be subjected to heavy losses, if the deal went through as contemplated.

Longson Most Active Champion In Ring Today

Wild Bill Longson, who will defend his world's heavyweight wrestling crown against towering Chief Saunooke, of Cherokee, N. C., at the City auditorium Saturday night, is one of the most active men ever to hold the title.

Hardly a week passes without the champ seeing action in at least two matches. And every time he goes into the ring he faces an opponent who has trained right down to the last notch for him. Grabbing the title is the fond hope of every heavyweight in the game, and usually when they face Wild William they use every trick of the profession to down him.

The crown means thousands of dollars a year to the wearer, so it can easily be seen why the path of the champion is liable to be chuck full of pitfalls unless he is on his toes at all times. Longson has held the title for more than two years, during which time he has disposed of most of his opposition in quick order.

The Big Chief proved to be an exception the last time they tangled. Saunooke stayed 28 minutes with Longson and actually had the best of the going until he fell victim of a dropkick from the champ.

Three other top-notch matches will be on the program, it is announced by Promoter Paul Jones.

North Fulton on Road

The North Fulton High cagers will journey to Canton tonight for a game against the high school team there, Coach Weyman Tucker announced yesterday.

MEHRE RE-SIGNED BY MISSISSIPPI

MEMPHIS, Jan. 29.—(AP)—The Commercial Appeal said tonight it had learned Harry Mehre had been signed to a new three-year contract as athletic director and head football coach of the University of Mississippi.

Mehre's assistants—Line Coach Farmer Johnson, End Coach Goat Hale and Backfgield Coach Ed Stone—were retained with one-year contracts, leaving the football setup the same as last year, the paper added.

Mehre's contract was to have expired Feb. 1. He has served seven years at the school, the longest of any Rebel coach.

A Notre Dame man, he was line and head coach for the University of Georgia for more than ten years before transferring to Ole Miss.

Hale, a graduate of Mississippi College, has been with the Rebels for nearly a decade.

Major John Davis Killed in Action

Maj. John Davis, son of "Twenty-per cent" Davis, of Georgia Tech football fame, was killed in action in Belgium on Jan. 8, friends learned here yesterday.

Young Davis was a graduate of West Point where he was a member of the football squad in the middle 30s. He was in the same outfit with Capt. L. W. (Chip) Robert III, and they were great buddies as were their daddies who played on Tech's great teams of 1905-08.

ATLANTA BOWLERS ADD TO WAR FUND

Atlanta bowlers have contributed $468.18 toward the Bowlers' Victory Legion, according to Walter Lawson, secretary of the City Duckpin Association, and checks totaling this amount have been forwarded to A. L. Ebersole, secretary of the Legion, in Washington.

Of the total amount, $207.34 was contributed by the duckpin bowlers and $26.75 by the tenpin bowlers. John S. Blick, owner of the alleys, matched each of these amounts. The bowling season is at the halfway mark and at least an equal amount will be given by the bowlers between now and the season's end.

The money is used for recreational causes for the American servicemen overseas.

Bell Vermont Plant To Make Mortar Shells

BOSTON, Mass., Jan. 29.—Announcement of the award of a new large war contract for the manufacture of chemical warfare mortar shells to the Bell Aircraft Corporation at their Burlington, Vt., plant, was made here today by Col. Lester W. Hurd, commanding officer of the Boston chemical warfare procurement district.

Col. Hurd said this new production was part of an overall New England increase which has come about as a result of the critical shortage of mortar ammunition overseas. This shell, Col. Hurd said, is the 4.2 chemical mortar shell.

LIGHTNING DIVISION'S IDEA

Stretcher-Sled Device Proves Boon to Wounded

By ROBERT EUNSON
(Substituting for Kenneth L. Dixon.)

ON THE WESTERN FRONT, Jan. 27.—(Delayed)—(AP)—Stretcher sleds now being used to carry the 78th Division's wounded back across the drifting snow on the western front have reduced the time needed to evacuate casualties over a 50-yard stretch from 40 to seven seconds and require only two men instead of four.

The device, nothing more than a stretcher attached to a sled, was designed by Sgt. Waldron Bliss, of Riverhead, Long Island, N. Y.

Of all the men in the "Lightning Division" whom you would not expect to meet dragging a sled around, it's Bliss. He spent 19 months in the South Pacific before coming here.

More battlefield commissions are claimed by the 102d, awarded 45, than any other division in the AEF.

In fact, the commanding general himself started his Army career as a private and has worn everything from corporal's chevrons to the big silver star and now decorates each of his shoulders.

He is Brig. Gen. Frank A. Keating, a native of New York city, who first joined up with the Fifth New Jersey Infantry in 1915. He served on the Mexican border and then came to France in 1917 with the 29th Division.

When Keating's men knocked out the last German bridgehead on the Roer in front of the Ninth Army yesterday they ran their string of captured German villages to 19 since Nov. 5.

They're back in Germany now and they agree Paris was quite an experience.

When Maj. Hugh Carey, of Brooklyn, N. Y., and Capt. Raymond Garino, of Hackensack, N. J., were in Paris on leave the other day, Garino decided it would be nice to buy an uplift model bra to send home, and his Brooklyn friend concurred.

Surrounded by dazzling and delicate bits of intimate female paraphernalia, Carey and Garino tried to explain to a salesgirl who couldn't speak English that they knew everything there was to know about the purchase they were going to make—except the correct size.

Faces were beginning to get red when a pretty girl went by outside. Garino bolted through the door and brought the rather startled young thing in for a model.

With only a little pointing here and there the two veterans of the 104th Division completed the transaction and the whole situation was rounded out nicely.
